Retail controls lifted

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government Friday removed price and wage controls on retail establishments which make about one-fourth of all retail sales in the nation.

Remaining under controls are food stores, retailers of petroleum and petroleum products, retail sales of motor vehicles, parts and equipment, and larger eating and drinking establishments.

In announcing the action, the Cost of Living Council said that 10 of the largest retailing firms have made commitments that they will maintain their pre-tax operating profit margins through next Aug. 1.

Chairman John T. Dunlop of the council told a news conference that he does not anticipate drastic price increases to result from the decontrol action.

He said the pledges by the 10 large firms to maintain their past profit margins "undoubtedly will have a restraining effect on price increases across the entire industry."

Today set to honor Guard

To kick off a stage recruiting drive, today has been designated as National Guard Day.

Mayor Frank Ferrell signed a proclamation Friday declaring the special day in Sikeston to honor all members of the Missouri Army National Guard for "their faithful and dedicated service to the community, state and nation, to encourage all citizens of Missouri eligible to serve in the National Guard to consider the advantages and opportunities of such service."

The recruiting drive, "Operation Fill -up," will be carried on throughout the month of February, but will be more concentrated Feb. 2 -17.

Persons who would like to see what the guard does during monthly weekend drills are invited to visit the National Guard Armory, 300 S. Main St., today and Sunday, while Company C of the 1140th Engineer Battalion is meeting.

A recruiter for the Sikeston Company will be at the Armory from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. Feb. 2 -17 to answer any questions about the Army National Guard.

The Missouri Army National Guard is trying to recruit 700 men and women with or without prior service in the armed forces.

The proclamation states that Feb. 2 has been declared National Guard Day because the Missouri Army National Guard is the first line backup force to the active Army, and the guard is "ready to serve and defend the citizens of Missouri in times of natural disasters and other emergencies."

Democrats plan no Watergate letup

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Mike Mansfield said Friday night the federal courts must pursue "the crimes of Watergate" as long as it takes to deal with Nixon administration scandals.

The Senate Democratic leader pledged Congress will deal fully this year with the question of impeaching President Nixon while giving first attention to a legislative agenda aimed at leading the nation to "a decent future."

Delivering the Democratic response to Nixon's State of the Union speech, Mansfield rejected Nixon's statement that "one year of Watergate is enough" and his plea for a prompt end to congressional and judicial probes of the scandal.

"Whether it is months of years," the Montana Democrat said, "there are no judicial shortcuts."

Mansfield spoke to the nation from his office, across the Capitol from the House chamber where Nixon presented his speech to a joint session of Congress.

After his speech, the Senate leader, his party's designated spokesman to answer Nixon, responded to questions from a panel of radio and television newsmen.

Mansfield listed election, tax and pension reform; health insurance; and a minimum wage increase as primary goals in the 1974 legislative program and expressed hope that President Nixon's $304.4-billion budget due Monday can be cut.

He called for public support for congressional efforts to clean up what he called "the campaign-financing mess." He declared "we shall not finally come to grips with the problem except as we are prepared to pay for the public business of elections with public funds."

Mansfield said that "what Watergate did to public confidence with regard to the nation's politics, the energy crisis has done in the realm of the nation's economy."

He added that "the immediate responsibility of government is to make certain that the shortage does not devastate the economy and that the price of past neglect is borne equitably by all Americans.

"If that means rationing, then let us not hesitate to use this device," Mansfield said, a contrast with Nixon's vow "to do everything we can to avoid gasoline rationing."

Mansfield said the events of the past year "have underscored the wisdom" of the nation's judgment in 1972 when it returned Democrats to control of Congress while giving Nixon and the Republicans a presidential landslide.

Citing congressional action to halt U. S. bombing of Cambodia and limit presidential war powers, Mansfield said the 93rd Congress' first session succeeded in acting to limit what he turned "an ominous shift to one- branch government."

"The erosion of the system of checks and balances was halted," he said. "A greater congressional impact began to be registered on all of the basic decisions of the federal government."

While devoting most of his prepared speech to major domestic and foreign concerns, Mansfield raised the Watergate question, and what he called "the related questions of impeachment and resignation," early in his remarks.

As for the question of resignation, he said: "The President has stated his intentions bluntly in that regard" by vowing to serve out the remainder of his second four- year term.

"Insofar as the Congress is concerned," Mansfield added, "that closes the matter of resignation."

"Impeachment is the responsibility of the Congress," Mansfield added, declaring "it is being handled properly and deliberately."

In what amounted to a pledge to make sure the matter is resolved one way or another by the end of 1974 and not permitted to drag on, he said: "I would anticipate that it will be dealt with fully in this session."

Mansfield said "The question of impeachment and the matters of the Watergate hearings create enormous responsibilities for the Congress.

"As for the crimes of Watergate— and there were crimes," Mansfield said, "they cannot be put to rest by Congress. Nor can any words of the President's or from me mitigate them.

"The disposition of crimes is a function of the Justice Department and the courts," he continued, declaring that as far as he can tell, Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski "is doing his job and so, too, are the courts."

Reorganization bill wins final approval

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri House and Senate gave final approval Friday to a state government reorganization bill that the governor says he will sign.

The action Friday ended many days of often bitter debate and a week of conference table negotiations.

The House sent it to the governor on a 141-4 vote, with Reps. Richard DeCoster, DCanton, Vernon Bruckerhoff, RSt. Mays, Jerold Drake, DGrant City, and Walt Mueller, R-Kirkwood voting against.

Passage came 4½ hours before the midnight Friday deadline for the 61-day special session. Both Houses closed up shop until 4 p.m. Monday.

Rep. Robert Snyder, R-Kirkwood, the minority floor leader of the House said Bond would sign the bill after approval by the House.

Gov. Christopher S. Bond vetoed a reorganization bill that was passed by the legislature in the 1973 session. When he called the special session Dec. 3, Bond made reorganization the top issue for consideration.

He said he didn't like the original Senate version, passed in December, but preferred a bill passed by the House. There was much trading off and compromising done Friday by the 10 House and Senate conferees.

The Senate passed the conference committee bill 29-2. The only negative vote came from Democrat Earl Blackwell of Hillsboro and James Noland, Republican from Osage Beach.

Cason called the bill the best that could be obtained through the spirit of compromise. He said objections would be raised by many concerning parts they didn't like and he expected much future legislation. "We'll be reorganizaing from here on," Cason said.

Approval cleared the way for adjournment of the special session. Gov. Christopher S. Bond has said he plans to begin working on reorganization in the next few weeks and willvhave most of it completed by April. Reorganization of the executive branch into 14 large departments was approved by the voters in 1972.

The Senate passed and sent to the governor two other special session bills.

One bill calls for the state speed limit to be lowered to 55 miles an hour on March 4 and the other would allow counties to buy fuel and other supplies on a negotiated basis when bids are not available because of the energy crisis.

The Senate also passed a bill to allow right turns on red lights. It was amended to allow the Highway Department to prohibit some right turns and the bill was sent back to the House.

Delaying an agreement on government reorganization was the Senate's stand that the Division of Welfare director should have Senate consent and the Tourism Commission should have independent authority in hiring personnel and adopting its budget, and the commissioners should have Senate advice and consent.

A House-passed bill to have the Public Service Commission monitor fuel supplies in the state was defeated 25-3. A Senate committee had offered an amendment to the bill, taking PSC enforcement out, but it was rejected. The only affirmative votes for the bill were from Sens. A. Clifford Jones, RBrentwood, Maurice Schechter, D-Creve Coeur, and Donald Gralike, D-St. Louis.

The fuel monitoring bill had been heavily lobbied against by the petroleum industry. It was supported by Gov. Christopher S. Bond.

Several senators fought to have the Senate substitute version of the fuel monitoring bill passed. These included Democrats Donald Manford of Kansas City, William Waters of Liberty and Albert Spradling of Cape Girardeaul.

Others said the substitute version would be so weak it would be useless.

It would be "less effective than a resolution on a basketball team," said Sen. A. Clifford Jones, R-Brentwood.

Sidelined editor surprised that Standard presses keep rolling

By TONY PIPPEN

By now, you're probably wondering what happened to that whiz-bang managing editor, without whom most people thought The Daily Standard would probably fall flat on its face within a week.

Most people — in this case — were actually my mother and me, and to tell the truth, I had already begun to have my doubts.

The easiest way to discover how unimportant you really are is to do something silly enough to take you out of action for a couple of weeks.

Well you ask, what happened to me?

Since meeting Howard Cosell at Disney World late last year, I believe in telling it like it is -- so, here's the way it happened.

I fell flat on my face!

Well, again, that's not exactly what happened. But if I told you what I fell from, you might fall flat on your face.

Maybe I had better back up and fill you in on a few preliminaries.

My boss, Charles Blanton III, henceforth to be known as III, asked me to play with him and other businessmen in a donkey basketball game in January to raise money for a math scholarship.

That's when it all started.

Before taking to the basketball court, III said he and I would be riding a donkey called "Killroy".

"We'll take turns riding," III told me. "I'll ride the first five minutes and then you come in for about five, then I'll take over again."

Killroy and III didn't seem to hit it off, so after about 8 seconds, III beckoned me on to the court -- I also had my ups and downs with Killroy. For some strange reason, Killroy preferred me more on the floor than on his back.

Killroy must have known when my five minutes were up because the last thing I remember was sailing over his head before being abruptly stopped by the floor. My left arm took the full force of my body.

That was my first "break" in show biz. A hospital x-ray revealed that the "break" was slightly below my left shoulder bone.

Dr. Max Heeb, whom everyone I've talked to, says is a very good bone surgeon, was called to my rescue at the hospital. Because of the type of break, he placed a "hanging cast" below the break and ordered me to let my arm hang.

The purpose of this, he told me, is to let the bone fuse together when it becomes sticky. He warned that I would have to endure a degree of pain, but the outcome would be more successful. Because of this, I'm forced to sleep in an inclining position -- never flat.

We'll leave it to your judgment as to the connection between my

Exchange Club plans Crime prevention drive in Sikeston

Throughout the next week, area business establishments will be visited by Sikeston Exchange Club members to seek cooperation for the upcoming National Crime Prevention Week. This year, National Crime Prevention Week will be observed Feb. 10 through 16.

Following a proclamation by the Mayor Frank Ferrell, the week will be officially observed by the citizens of Sikeston. A week- long community program has been established as a basis for year- around crime prevention practices.

This year's theme is "Crime is the loser ... when you know the game rules!" Posters bearing this slogan will be seen throughout the community in the coming week as a reminder to each individual citizen that when this slogan, seen or heard, he or she will be prompted to take action.

This is the 27th year that Exchange has sponsored its annual crime prevention program. However, this year represents Sikeston's first effort in the program.

"We know that crime prevention programs are having their effect," Duane DeCota, Sikeston Exchange Club president, said. "A very important point is greater citizen awareness of the criminal problem. The result is more enthusiastic support of anti- crime measures."

Local area law enforcement agencies will be active in this program throughout Crime Prevention Week, with an open house planned at the police station for interested citizens, assembly meetings at various public schools, public showings of films at Sikeston Activity Center and visits with area business merchants to discuss means for combating and controlling shoplifting.

"It's important that everyone get involved, that's why we are going to give it our all this year," DeCota added.

Crime prevention posters

Sikeston Exchange Club members will visit business establishments next week to seek cooperation in placing crime prevention posters like the one being put up here by Sikeston Police Chief Leon Culp, center, and John G. Strinich, Iowa-Missouri district director of the Exchange Club. Looking on, from left, are Tony Heckemeyer, chairman of the crime prevention program for the club; Duane DeCota, club president; and Mayor Frank Ferrell.

ONE WAY TO SAVE FUEL

All is not lost. The artistic world — at least a well defined segment of it — has been telling us for the past decade what to do with our old gas drinking clunkers.

And you can become famous and gather up a few shekels without using one gallon of gasoline or a quart of oil.

First you get yourself a welding outfit. Don't forget the protective hood. It will save your eyes from the sparks and glare of the welding flame.

The dark glasses might also save you some embarrassment after you have finished the job. On second thought, we seriously doubt that because if you are a devotee of this kind of "sculpture" you will probably think it's beautiful.

But to get back to the nitty gritty of this thing, after you get a welding outfit the rest is easy.

Simply knock your old auto or truck into various pieces or go to an auto junkyard and pick out a couple of armfuls of fenders, doors, radiators, pipes and irons.

Since we never did try our hand at this sort of thing, we didn't really know whether you start with an idea and weld all this junk together or just weld it together and give it a name.

A recent newspaper article describing a show of this kind said:

"Some of the sculptures are small and tightly packed, like wads of paper, and are placed on pedestals. Others are large, rest on the floor and are most expansive in form, like giant spreading growths — villainous substances, perhaps in some technicolor science fiction fantasy.

"... at once seductive and repellent they are fascinating but not friendly to the eye."

We suppose that this sort of junk art is a part of the pseudo intellectual revolution against the way of life on which this country was founded.

It can be compared to the honest beauty found in the expressions of so many of our true artists who eke out a small existence in every city, town and hamlet of this nation.

We hope America will soon forget this fad of the blow torch because even if it is art in the eyes of some, it's still junk.

WHAT'S A FEW MORE LINES?

The government of Israel has lodged three formal complaints with the International Committee of the Red Cross charging Syria and Egypt with the "crimes of murder and mutilation committed on the person of Israeli prisoners of war" captured during the October fighting.

The complaints document numerous incidents of the close- range execution of stripped, blindfolded and bound Israeli soldiers and the physical abuse of others — enough to warrant the charge that these were not random occurences but the product of official policy by Syria and Egypt in violation of the Geneva Convention.

Syria, of course, continues to refuse even to release the names of the Israeli POWs it still holds.

The details make distressing reading, even in an age that has become hardened to the atrocities of war. But a world that permits terrorists to hijack airplanes or blow up airplanes or gun down innocent people or permits its very economic well- being to be put in jeopardy at the whim of oil- rich Arabs is not likely to become indignant over such an insignificant thing as the murder of a few Israeli soldiers.

In sum, Israel's complaints, plus about 15 cents, will buy it a cup of sympathy at the bar of world opinion.

STRIPPING AWAY ILLUSIONS

What price ecology?

Just for the state of Ohio, just to reclaim all abandoned surface and underground coal mines by the year 2000, it will cost $623 million.

That is the price tag placed on the project by the Ohio Board of Unreclaimed Strip Mined Lands.

Originally, the board had reported that it would take 95 years to reclaim surface- mined lands alone at a cost of $283 million. But the availability of additional funds from the federal government led it to recommend that the project be shortened to 26 years and include cleaning up deep mines, which are responsible for most of the acid mine drainage in the state.

The figure of $623 million seems reasonable enough, if thousands of acres of barren land can be returned to forests or farms or recreational areas and streams be purified.

But it would have been even more reasonable if men had had the foresight years ago to place a tax of a few pennies a ton on coal to pay for reclamation at the time the coal was removed.

Today, this energy- hungry, pollution - conscious nation is eyeing the vast, low- sulfur coal deposits of the West where, because of climatic conditions, ecologists estimate that it will cost as much as $14,000 an acre to reclaim strip-mined land.

We can have our coal and our ecology, too. But we will have to pay for it as we go, not leave it up to future generations.

As a consequence of the Watergate affair, we are told that the way to end influence peddling in government, to end the buying of politicians by special interests, is through outlawing of the evil private contribution, and the public funding of federal campaigns.

Beating the drums for this latest reform is Mr. John Gardner, chairman of the "People's Lobby," Common Cause. In his latest bulletin, he transports us -- in two pages -- back to the 60s, to the days of our political youth.

"Two of the most dangerous threats to democracy," he writes, "(1) the power of money to buy results and (2) secrecy to hide underhanded dealings from the public."

This would lead us to believe that we are indeed on the threshold of the New Jerusalem if we will but harken to the voice of the Prophet.

Again, Mr. Gardner, several paragraphs later:

"We're on the verge of a new era in American politics -- an era typfied by a new honesty and openness in government. You have a choice. Do nothing -- and we slip back into the morass of corruption in government. Or take a strong positive step - join Common Cause -- and you help launch that new era."

Well a $15 contribution to join Common Cause seems a small price to pay -- to help launch a "new era." But what is the reality?

First, that since money replaced barter, money has purchased influence, and the practice will not vanish from the earth because Congress decides to pass another law.

The corrupt politician, businessman, or union boss looking to purchase some influence in government is not going to stop shopping around because Mr. Gardner and the Congress have ruled out campaign contributions as the currency of exchange.

As Patrick J. Buchanan outlined in a speech at Sangamon State University, Springfield, Ill., recently:

'The more likely outcome of outlawing private contributions, or severely limiting same, while forcing the public to fund federal elections is:

"(1) A diminution in the freedom of individuals to participate in the political process, by shutting down the only avenue open to tens of thousands who cannot work in a campaign.

"(2) The creation of yet another federal agency, siphoning off tax dollars, staffed by the kind of $30,000 - a- year professional bureaucrat who supports Common Cause.

"(3) An increase in the tax burden on the average citizen who, if the citizens lobby gets its way, will end up not only paying the cost of federal elections, but the salaries of Mr. Gardner's federal election police as well.

"(4) Yet another shift of power away from individuals and over to government -- and of resources out of the paychecks of private citizens and private institutions and into the bank accounts of federal bureaucrats.

"(5) Lastly, the disillusionment that follows when still another 'reform' fails to usher in the 'new era' we were promised."

The question that needs to be asked is this: Does not restoration of a healthy respect for government require not only that government cease expanding its role in our national life, but that government begin a strategic retreat all along the political front.

In the estimation of many Americans, there is truly a "crisis of confidence" in government. But a healthy skepticism remains in order. This is not the first time we have suddenly learned of some new "crisis" in our domestic affairs.

Yet, time and again the principal beneficiaries of the programs to resolve these "crises" turn out to be not the poor, but the poverty professionals, not the people who pay the bill, but the bureaucrats and consultants, the subcontractors and builders, the counselors and social workers whose numbers multiply and fill the earth.

IT IS FAIR, EVEN IF LATE

Democratic House Speaker Richard Rabbit has given Republicans a proportional representation on House committees. It brings Republican committee members to 40%, whereas it has been only 20%.

In a representative form of government like ours, it is imperative that minorities have the proportionate representation to which they are entitled by a vote of the people.

Speaker Rabbit's action is a just and heartening one, even if it is several years late.

Now if the rest of our Democrat and Republican Representatives and Senators will demonstrate the same fair attitude toward the other side of the political fence, we'll get needed action instead of damaging bickering at Jefferson City.

GERALD FORD SHOULD STAY OUT OF WATERGATE

It is only natural for Vice - President Gerald Ford to defend and stand by the man who put him in his present post and whose policies he supports in the first place. It is also customary for the vice- president to serve as mouthpiece for the administration and voice the tough policies a President, himself, may not wish to express. Spiro Agnew did that for Richard Nixon and Hubert Humphrey did it for Lyndon B. Johnson.

But Vice - President Ford is not in a natural situation and the administration cannot continue to regard the office of the vice - presidency as operating from the same old stand.

A vice- presidential candidate normally is chosen by a nominating convention indirectly and by the individual who is running for the top spot in reality. The voters then make their decision on this team, with probably 99 per cent of the consideration given the person who is running for President. Thus it is a political matter, a condition concerning partisan politics from the beginning, and with the vice- president a creature of partisan machinery.

Whether, after the election, the vice - president ought to be regarded as administration flunky and general errand boy is another matter. That is the tradition, but surely it is a bad one, a source of great discontent and a waste of talent.

There can be little debate, however, whether Gerald Ford can serve as a White House functionary and also serve the interests of the nation. He cannot do both.

Ford is not the usual geographical choice of a convention or President who then rode into office on the coattails of the primary candidate. He was the first vice- president ever to be chosen under the 25th Amendment and he was confirmed by a vote of Congress only after an extensive investigation and vigorous debate. He was named by a President in trouble who now faces the prospect of impeachment and the possibility of trial and removal. He followed a vice- president who was forced out of office by the circumstances of his own actions and the sentence of a court of law.

So whatever his private feelings and own wishes at this difficult moment, Vice - President Ford plays no proper role in offering opinions on guilt or innocence or defending anyone in matters now before the House Judiciary Committee or the court of Judge John J. Sirica. The administration has no right to expect him to do so. It has, if anything, the duty to keep him outside this sordid arena.

For whatever his value as a potential President, the chief quality of Gerald Ford at this point is his dissociation with what has come to be known as Watergate and attempts to cover it up. If he becomes a White House apologist, he will be ruined.

JACK ANDERSON SAYS: Gainesville 8 Spy Tells His Tale

WASHINGTON — The FBI's star witness in the Gainesville Eight case has charged that the federal prosecutor was a "bigot" who called black jurors "niggers," yet plied them with steak dinners in hopes they would vote guilty.

The jury unanimously acquitted the eight, most of them Vietnam vets, in less than four hours. They had been accused of trying to disrupt the 1972 GOP convention in Miami.

The chief government witness was an FBI informer named William Walter Lemmer. A few days ago, he surfaced in Dallas, where he sought a job with the weeklypaper "Iconoclast."

The publisher, Doug Baker, interviewed Lemmer on tape with his consent. With no holds barred, Lemmer answered questions to prove he is no longer an FBI spy. A 60-page transcript of Lemmer's revelations has now been given to us exclusively.

DRANK TOO MUCH

"I was kind of happy" over the acquittal, Lemmer said. The chief prosecutor, Assositant U. S. Attorney Jack Carrouth, drank too much and was a "bigot," explained the former witness for the prosecution, adding:

"This yoyo (Carrouth) comes out and says, deep Southern drawl 'Well, I know that we have at least two votes for conviction. We've been feeding those two damn niggers on the jury steaks for the past six weeks. By God, I know that we have at least two votes for conviction.'

"Well," observed Lemmer on the tape, "they fooled the -- out of him, because it was a unanimous vote ... for acquittal."

When we reached Carrouth in Florida, he told us: "I absolutely deny it." Then he recognized that to call Lemmer a liar was to impeach the man he used as his own top witness. "What can you do?" Carrouth drawled helplessly.

'BUNGLED BADLY'

On the tape, Lemmer said: "The case was bungled and bungled badly." Yet, when the verdict came in so quickly, "I was kind of stunned by the suddenness of the whole thing ... I wasn't ready to leave Florida ... I was sitting there at $36 a day (from the federal government) and I needed $200 more to finish paying for a little Triumph" sports car.

Lemmer said an informer's life is not an easy one. For one thing, the FBI insisted on information about whether "guys have sexual hangups ... It's a Hoover hangover."

The last J. Edgar Hoover often regaled President Lyndon Johnson with reports on the sexual improprieties of famous Americans. As a result of Hoover's interest, FBI files are spiced with sexual anecdotes about citizens, much of it rumor.

Lemmer also claimed the FBI brought him together with another witness in the trial -- a violation of court rules which prevent witnesses from discussing the case with each other while the trial is in progress. But Lemmer said his main advice to the other witness was: "Don't be nervous on the stand, man."

DIDN'T FOLLOW THROUGH

While Lemmer praised some of his FBI "handlers" for their decency and said one agent refused to carry out an unethical investigation of innocent Chicanos, Lemmer had harsh words for Justice Department circuit rider Guy Goodwin.

The hard - nosed Goodwin has made a career of spending hundreds of thousands of the taxpayers' dollars in unwise and unsuccessful cases against militants. Most of Goodwin's major cases have ended in acquittals.

Lemmer said Goodwin refused him support payments he had been promised. "The Justice Department did not follow through with their commitment to me," Lemmer complained.

He deined charges he got paid $14,000 for his services, plus rent and other expenses. "I barely spent $5,000 altogether," he said.

NOT PROUD

Reviewing his life as an FBI informer, Lemmer conceded that "during the trial I was a dirty ------." But now, he said, "I m not particularly proud of it .... It's hard to go around telling people, 'Hey, like I used to be a Justice Department spy."

"I see my position the same way I'm sure that (ex-White House counsel) John Dean saw his and like everybody else that got caught up in the little spy machinery ... I was involved in it. I admit it, you know. I'm not involved in it now. I never want to hear about it again."

FOOTNOTE: Despite Lemmer's protests of innocence, the Iconclast did not give him a permanent job. Editor Baker said the fear lingered that Lemmer would do to the newspaper what he did to the Vietnam vets.

In a statement to us, the FBI vehemently denied probing "sexual hangups." As for the meeting between Lemmer and the other witness, the FBI said the agents warned both men against talking about the case and were on hand to make sure the visit was no more than social small talk. The statement contended that the FBI no longer has any ties with Lemmer.

The Justice Department denied making support commitments to Lemmer and the FBI said it had routinely paid Lemmer as provided under law for services and expenses.

SACRIFICIAL ANIMALS: Defense Department experiments on the biological effects of radiation have cost the lives of more than 40,000 test animals since 1970.

The Pentagon brass, seeking criteria to predict casualties during a nuclear attack, have sacrificed 920 monkeys, 376 dogs 610 swine and 38,500 rodents over the last four years.

One study, involving 420 monkeys, pigs and dogs, determined the radiation dosage necessary to cause "permanet incapacitation" -- death, in non-Pentagonese language.

Researchers told us that animals receiving the highest doses of radiation usually died within three hours. Others made a temporary recovery before dying of acute radiation sickness.

A Pentagon spokesman said the tests were necessary to update the data gathered after the nuclear explosions at Hiroshima and Nagasaki in 1945.

FOOTNOTE: Countless more animals have died in other Defense Department tests.

Which Crimes Worse? Mafia Romps -- and Kills -- In Impeachment Congressman's Home District

NEWARK, N. J. — This is not meant to reflect on the integrity of that spirited international parliamentarian, congressman Peter Rodino, chairman of the House Judiciary Committee now wrestling with the impeachment problem -- a fixed bout.

This is meant merely to suggest that when Rodino finishes the exercise in exorcising, he should look homeward to this rotting and corrupt and truly bloodstained city which is the bulk of his 10th Congressional District.

It is the power center of New Jersey, the Mafai's "corridor state," which in turn has been called the Cosa Nostra's playground and bedroom.

At least 17 men have been gang-killed in and around this city. In Newark's general area, others have disappeared. Some have been Mafia- executed over in New York. Still others in the mob have fled. There isn't a racket known to man which the tough organized crime families don't practice or conjure up here.

Yet the city and the congressional district are vital to the nation. There is the key Port of Newark, crucial for a network of industrial parks, unions and fuel supplies. There is the burgeoning Newark Airport. There are hundreds of thousands of folk of all color and creed gasping for living room -- decent housing.

And there certainly will be gory gunplay. The old leaders are dying, or dead, or in prison, as is the multi- millionaire Genovese family heir- apparent, 72 - year - old Jerry Catena. There are the alleged Mafia chiefs -- the aging Ruggiero (Richie the Boot) Boiardo and his son Anthony (Tony Boy) Boiardo. There are old enforcers of Murder, Inc.'s Longie Zwillman (who supposedly hanged himself) still influencing some unions -- as investigations soon will show.

It isn't pretty. It will get uglier. There is a vacuum of Mafia leadership. Gyp De Carlo is dead. So are most of the old Genovese dons. Those chieftains still alive are mostly fugitives, in prison or under indictment. The federals have nailed Simone Rizzo (Sam the Plumber) DeCavalcante.

Essex County, heart of Congressman Rodino's district, has for years been the gut of organized crime, a stronghold for crisscrossing mobs, gambling, extortion, hijacking, narcotics, cigarette smuggling and some labor terror. In the past it has been easy to identify the mob leadership. But with the aging and dying and imprisonment of the dons there isn't much centralized underworld power.

So the younger hoods now are battling for this power-- a struggle which will eventually affect the entire nation.

So, for the moment, put the spotlight on county prosecutor Joseph Lordi, a devout crusader. It was he, some five years ago, who dug up the rot on the corrupt and now imprisoned Democratic Mayor Hugh Addonizio and, for lack of staff and money, called for federal help.

Recently Joe Lordi petitioned the Essex County assignment judge for a special grand jury to probe the series of unsolved killings in the area. It was approved. And on Feb. 9, 23 men and women will be selected, a foreman and assistant foreman chosen, and the investigation will begin.

There will be an attempt to learn who killed whom. Why? How does all this fit into the pattern of organized crime? What are the power struggles? Why have the 17 gang killings gone unsolved? What political ties, if any, do the mobs and their killers have?

Lordi has a fine but small staff. And there are funds from the Justice Dept's Law Enforcement Assistance Administration.

But prosecutors, no matter how dedicated, live by more than money and manpower alone. They can use public, and certainly congressional, support.

This, after all, is Congressman Rodino's district. He has been its spokesman in the House for 25 years. Now that he has disclosed his dedication to investigation -- namely, the impeachment process -- he presumably will find time to dig into his home district.

Nor would it hurt if Congressman Joseph Minish, a former labor leader now representing the neighboring 11th District, would lend a hand. His district spills over into Essex County and one or two other areas in which the hoods play.

They might help create the atmosphere in which Joe Lordi could operate without interference. They might want to help discover how it happened that at least one company tied to an alleged Mafia heir was able to win a wiring contract on the Newark Federal Building in which the national law agencies operate -- and which was swept for "bugs" later to make certain the underworld combine wasn't listening in.

Certainly Congressman Rodino and his committee should make the punishment fit the crime where they find it in Washington. And that should go for the home districts, too. Over the years the Newark connection has been worth lots more than any French connection.

What's the law?

The case of the besieged umpire

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Roscoe, a baseball umpire, was considered no gem on the diamond, one afternoon, by certain of the local fans.

In face, during almost every other inning, the manager of the home team engaged him in an eye-ball-to-eye- ball confrontation over an alleged bad call.

As a result, by the end of the game, the hooting fans were so enraged at Roscoe that he required police protection to leave the stadium. Unfortunately, he didn't leave it unscathed. Two burly fans managed to break through his escort and lower the boom on him.

Sporting a pair of shiners, Roscoe blamed the incident on the manager of the home town team and sued him for his injuries.

"By repeatedly challenging my calls", complained Roscoe in court, "he fanned the fury of the fans and incited them against me."

"What did he expect me to do?" responded the manager of the home team. "Roscoe was calling balls and strikes like he needed a seeing eye dog. In protesting his calls, I was only doing my job as a manager."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you hold the manager liable for Roscoe's shiners?

This is how the Judge ruled: NO! The judge held that the unsportsmanlike act of the fans in attacking Roscoe was not so directly related to the manager's protests as to make him responsible.

"It would put an intolerable burden upon managers of baseball teams," noted the Judge in effect, "to saddle them with the responsibility for the actions of every emotionally unstable person who might become enraged over a protested call might or who might arrive at a game spoiling from a domestic upheaval."

80 participate in County Soils and Crops Conference

BLOOMFIELD -- At least 80 people participated in County Soils and Crops Conference held in Bloomfield Jan. 25. Soybean production was the principal feature of the program for this event.

Soybean varieties and fertilization were discussed by Tom Brown, area agronomy specialist. He cited the importance of using soybean cyst nematode resistant varieties and reported that average per -acre soybean yields had increased in Southeast Missouri during the period that they have been used in spite of widespread nematode infestation. He described the new Forrest and Tracey soybean varieties

He also emphasized the importance of the use of fertilizer and lime in accordance with soil needs as determined by soil test and outlined suggestions to help farmers realize maximum returns from the fertilizer available to them during the fertilizer shortage.

Two farmers and an extension specialist discussed weed control in soybeans. Albert Kruse of Dexter and Lloyd Francis of Painton reported that post -emergence treatments of Basagran, a new herbicide, had controlled cocklebur on their farms and showed colored slides to illustrate the control obtained.

Joe Scott, state agronomy specialist at the University of Missouri Delta Center in portageville, outlined recommendations of the University of Missouri College of Agriculture pertaining to weed control in soybeans and discussed results of research work conducted along his line at the Delta Center.

Jim Miller, a Dexter farmer, told the group how the soild fumigants, Fumazone and Nemagon, had proved profitable in the control of soybean cyst nematode on his farm.

Dr. Charles Baldwin, plant pathologist at the Delta Center, discussed the importance of controlling cyst nematode and diseases in soybeans in this area and outlined results of research work that he has conducted at the Delta Center pertaining to disease and cyst nematode control. He also showed symptoms of a number of diseases which affect soybeans in this area.

Farm management practices that will help to increase soybean profits were discussed by John Yount, area farm management specialist. Practices discussed in this connection included varieties, irrigation, disease control, harvesting and storage of soybeans.

Two subjects that apply to other crops as well as soybeans were discussed. These included the plant variety protection act discussed by Joe Scott, and the 1974 farm program described by Edwin Pulliam, county Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service executive director.

Hubert Swinger, county soils and crops conference committee chairman, was in charge of the program

Some 'rude' hostesses have good intentions, not rocks in the head

Dear Ann Landers: The letter about the hostess of the cocktail party who excused herself, put on tennis shoes and climbed the ladder to the roof of her house to get a little boy's kite was beautiful. It reminded me of another wonderful lady. I'll love her to my dying day.

Many years ago my little brother had a bike accident four blocks from home. He cut his foot badly. He dragged himself to the nearest house. The woman who answered the door was having a party. When she saw my kid brother she put him in her car and drove him to the hospital. Then she called our house and found out I was home alone. So she came over and stayed with me until my parents arrived.

The doctor said if it hadn't been for that woman's quick thinking my brother would have lost his foot. So God bless another lady who was "rude" to her guests. -- Grateful.

Dear G.: Life can be lovely when people care about each other. Thanks for a heart warmer.

Dear Ann Landers: What can I do about a man 74 years old who keeps abusing me verbally and calling me unprintable names because he is now imagining things I did when I was a young girl?

We have been married for more than 50 years. There is absolutely no truth to his filthy accusations. I am a respectable person who deserves a little dignity and peace of mind in the evening of my life.

My husband was a notorious skirt- chaser in his younger years. Could this have something to do with it? I am at a loss to understand why he insists on going into these rages. His mind is perfectly fine otherwise. These name- calling episodes are the only symptons that he is not all there. Please advise. -- Wash., D. C.

Dear Wash: Sounds as if the ex-skirt- chaser's conscience might be bothering him and he is conveniently transferring his guilty to you.

Tune him out as you would a bit of nonsense on the radio or TV. Don't attempt to defend yourself or waste energy on denials. Accept the fact that in this one particular area he is bananas.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a faithful reader and I agree that people should get professional help when they feel they aren't able to cope. But don't you realize that most people can't afford it?

I am the mother of five children. I know I need to see a psychiatrist, but I keep bumping along, doing the best I can because there's no money for "professional help."

Millions of others are in the same situation. I hope you believe me because this is the way it is in the real world. -- Jersey Shore.

Dear Jersey: I receive thousands of letters every week from "the real world" and I do believe you. But I am baffled that a reader who described herself as a "faithful reader" would not know that I have addressed myself to this very problem dozens of times. Here is the answer -- AGAIN.

There are many places a person with limited (or no) financial resources can go for professional help. For the names of these places closest to your home, write to the National Institute of Mental Health, 9000 Rockville Pike, Rockville, Maryland. There are hundreds of County and State Mental Health Associations eager to help. Look in the phone book. Also look for Recovery, Inc., The Family Service Association, and The Catholic Charities. Good luck and get going.

Don't get burned by a "line" that's too hot to handle. Play it cool with Ann Landers's guide to "Necking and Petting -- What Are the Limits? Send your request to Ann Landers, P. O. Box 3346, Chicago, Illinois 60654, enclosing 50 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self- addressed envelope.

A wife's view of Jefferson City

By: Kay Cline

Wedding anniversaries are something special to us women and to some men. Before I married I always dreamed that anniversaries were special days to be remembered. It was a day set apart from all other days.

January 23 was our second wedding anniversary. It doesn't seem possible it has been two years. C. F. bought me a beautiful red three carnation corsage and had it delivered to me in his office at the capitol building. I was very pleasantly surprised. I love to receive flowers as gifts. I went down to the side gallery and C. F. introduced me from the chamber floor as his bride of two years. I spent the afternoon listening to the Representatives debate the reorganization bill.

When the legislators adjourned at 6:00 P.M., the Roads and Highways Committee went to Viet's Diamond Restaurant for refreshments and dinner. The wives who live here in Jefferson City with their husbands were asked to attend the dinner. Of course, I went with C. F. Before dinner the representatives and their wives sang "Happy Anniversary to You." This always embarrasses me and I felt like crawling under the table to hide. I did this as a child when the "Happy Birthday" song was sung to me. I thought if I did crawl under the table, it would embarrass C. F. so I stuck it out. I could feel myself blushing a deep shade of red.

The dinner was delicious and was served family style which included fried chicken, country ham and all the extra trimmings.

After dinner we went back to the Capitol Building's legislative library where the Roads and Highways Committee was meeting to hear three bills. The bills were heard, discussed and acted on in executive session. The executive sessions are now open to the public since the passage of the Sunshine Bill.

We arrived home at 11:00, stumbled to bed, thus ending a second anniversary. Wasn't this an exciting wedding anniversary! It certainly didn't turn out like I had hoped it would. However, the legislators are very busy with the two sessions going on. I am thankful that we were able to be together even if we did have to share our dinner with 30 other people.

WHOLE FAMILIES GET GOOD GRADES

GARDEN CITY, N.Y. (AP — A Nassau Community College survey indicates that the family which studies together gets good grades together. Dr. Robert Gwydir, vice president for academic affairs, observes that "academic families usually have good academic averages."

He considers that family enrollments at the Garden City campus are "getting down to the bedrock of community service." About 1,725 students are involved in these family enrollments.

Miss Hubbard is bride

GRANITE CITY, ILL—Miss Alice Hubbard, a former resident of Sikeston, Mo., became the bride of the Rev. Maxey Schrieber of Granite City at 7:30 p.m. Jan 4 in Granite City. The Rev. Tom O'Guin performed the double-ring candlelight ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Hubbard Sr. of Sikeston, and the groom's parents are the Rev. and Mrs. Max Schrieber of Granite City.

Eddie Hubbard of St. Louis, uncle of the bride, accompanied his wife as she sang, "Fill Our Way Everyday With Love" and "Whither Thou Goest".

Candlelighters were Miss Brenda Hubbard of St. Louis, cousin of the bride, and Miss Judy Schrieber of Granite City, sister of the groom.

The bride was attired in a formal-length traditionally-styled, white gown. The satin and lace dress featured long lace sleeves and full satin skirt overlaid with several layers of lace. Her elbow-length veil was held secure by a Juliet cap. She carried a cascade of roses and greenery. Her color scheme was pink and burgundy and was carried out throughout the wedding party's attire and reception decorations.

Maid of honor was Miss Martha Schrieber of Granite City, sister of the groom.

Miss Lisa Hubbard of St. Louis, cousin of the bride, served as flower girl, and David Schrieber, brother of the groom was ring bearer.

Girl Scout directors asked to act

DEXTER—Miss Marion G. Burns of Kansas City National Girl Scout regional consultant, a guest of the Cotton Boll Girl Scout Council board of directors at a luncheon business meeting of the board on Tuesday in Dexter, pointed out in her remarks that it is the responsibility of the membership of the board of directors "to know the Way, show the Way and go the Way."

The board's responsibility is to the council in providing services to members and in fulfilling its responsibility to the national council, she added.

Mrs. Thurston S. Hill, council president, presided during the meeting.

Miss Burns, who works with councils of the region, has had years of experience in working with Girl Scout councils, having served as executive director and other official positions of working directly with neighborhood councils and troops.

The speaker noted that, in this era of rapid change, it is of utmost importance that the Girl Scout program be geared to move with this rapid change. In order to meet this demand, close communication is required between the National Board of directors and the 385 councils in the United States, which is done through scheduled direct phone conversation with council presidents and communication through profile reports reflecting the needs and services offered by the council, she continued.

Miss Burns stressed the affirmative action phase of the council charter in assuming its reponsibility on program goals, services offered and composition of the population makeup of the area. To the council, the board members were reminded of their responsibility in serving as ex-officio members of Finance, Program and Public Relations Committee.

Mrs. Joe Dye, Mrs. Manuel Drumm, Mrs. Warren Manning, Mrs. Paul Fisher, Mrs. Clifford LaPlant and Mrs. Bill Lewis of Sikeston attended the meeting.

Other neighborhoods represented included: Dexter, Malden, Caruthersville, Hayti, Kennett, Poplar Bluff, Essex, Charleston and Bloomfield.

One must meet his own needs as well as others'

By SHAREN K. HUNT
Area Home Economist

Stop and think about all of the things you are – the roles you live: spouse, homemaker, community member, employe, voter, club member, family member, church member, etc. Each of us has many roles responsibilities and needs, but sometimes it's easy to feel spread out or so divided that the real and total you is camoflauged.

An important part in finding yourself again is to realize that while you have roles to play in meeting others' needs, you too have needs.

Family members especially need to work on meeting their own and group needs. Every family member has basic needs:

The need for affection — to feel liked and loved; the need to belong and contribute to a group; the need for self- direction — to be able to decide things for oneself; the need to grow and achieve — to feel successful; the need for new experiences the need for values to live by and for.

Babies are easy to cuddle and hold, but how about affection needs of others? Taking time for each child, really listening to their stories, showing your love and respect each person for his or her own special self, is just as necessary.

Belonging to a family group means each has privacy as well as a voice in family activites. Young children also feel their contributions are important, whether it's a good story at the dinner table, a trimmed lawn, or a picture to decorated the family room.

Independence as a universal need requires chances to choose in matters that affect you. As a parent, this means you have responsibility to limit frustration and conflict by setting limits on choices children may have.

The need to grow and achieve is met in a family or any kind of group by recognizing that each person has individual strengths and shouldn't be pitted against others.

New experiences is probably the most passed over need in many families. It's so much easier to settle for familiar tried and true ways. Instead, encourage meeting new people, reading new books, trying new things (recipes, crafts, new routes home, hairstyles, etc.)

Values are the big ideas in life and set one's life on a certain path. This means to practice what you preach because children learn from what you do or don't do, as well as what you say.

Any one group or setting shouldn't be expected to satisfy all of one's needs, but families can meet many, if they grow emotionally as well as physically.

Caring for your new baby: Part 1

Hold a baby comfortably, without fear

You and Your New Baby- Part I

(This series of 18 article prepared by the U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare will inform you of and describe some of the things about normal babies that commonly worry parents--telling you what to do or not to do about them. They should answer many of your questions about what to expect of your new baby, and give simple instructions about solving problems that most parents face during their baby's first year of life. These first three articles are directed at the caring of your baby during his first few weeks of life...both in the hospital and at home. They also suggest ways of making you, the parents, feel more comfortable with him, thereby enabling you to become more aware of his development.

Handle and Play With Baby

New parents are sometimes worried about hurting a newborn baby if they handle him. The first time you see the baby you can feel free to pick him up, get to know what he feels like, dress him and undress him.

Babies are really quite sturdy. They can take a good deal of handling and usually they enjoy it. If there is any reason for special care, the doctor will tell you. If you are unsure about how to pick up, hold, dress or undress your baby, do not hesitate to ask someone— one of the nurses or experienced Mothers— to show you. Then do it yourself until you are comfortable.

There is almost nothing you can do that is wrong except actually drop him. He will let you know by crying or struggling if you are doing something wrong. If you and he are both comfortable, you are doing all right, despite what critical neighbors, grandparents or even nurses or doctors might say.

Get the feel and the fun of handling and playing with your baby while you are still in the hospital. Insist on having him with you more than just for feedings, no matter what the hospital "rules" are. Both you and the baby will learn about each other from these contacts, and it will make it much easier to care for him when you are alone with him at home.

Ask the Doctors and Nurses

Don't keep your questions to yourself! Doctors and nurses may think you know more than you really do or may think you understand something they have tried to explain when you don't. Keep asking questions until you understand. When they use medical or other words you don't understand, ask them to explain. When they give advice that sounds hard to follow, find out whether they really mean what you think they mean.

For example, you might be told to bathe your baby each time you have to change a soiled diaper. You could wind up giving a lot of unnecessary baths if you did not ask and find out that what they mean by "bathe" is to wipe him gently with a clean washcloth or diaper that has been moistened with a little water!

Take Care of Yourself

Your own health as a mother is almost as important to your baby as is his own health. Giving birth to a baby is exhausting, and the changes that take place in a mother's body after she has had a baby are also tiring. Don't be surprised if you don't feel like yourself for several weeks.

You will be tired when you get home from the hospital. You will probably have plenty of strength and energy to take care of yourself and the baby. But housework, the care of other children and meal preparation for the whole family may be more of a strain than you think.

Bell City man bound over for aiding jail escapee

BLOOMFIELD— Frankie Gayle Hubbard of Bell City, charged with aiding and abetting a known felon, has been bound over to Circuit Court after a preliminary hearing in Magistrate Court before Judge Koss Blomeyer.

Hibbard is accused of aiding and abetting Dale McCulley of Bell City after the latter's escape from the Bernie jail where he was being held on charges of burglary and stealing and tampering with a motor vehicle.

Stoddard County Deputy Sheriff Arthur Lee testified that he received a call on Jan. 7 from the Oran Police Department that McCulley had been seen riding in an automobile belonging to Hubbard and that the pair had been seen in various taverns in Scott County.

Lee said he then went to Hubbard's home in Bell City and asked if McCulley was there. He said Hubbard told him McCulley was not there, but Lee said he then stepped into the house and discovered McCulley asleep in the bedroom.

McCulley has since been sentenced to three years in custody of the State Department of Corrections on charges of burglary and stealing.

Charges of tampering with a motor vehicle against Raymond Jackson of Essex were continued to allow him time to obtain counsel. Jackson and a juvenile are charged with the theft of a battery from an automobile owned by Jack Hollis of Dexter while Hollis was hunting south of Dexter on Jan. 27.

Julian A. Stepp of Advance was found not guilty in a trial by the court on a charge of possession of intoxicating beverages by a minor. Deputy Sheriff Lee testified he gave Stepp a ticket after smelling beer and Stepp admitted he had been drinking, but no beer was found in his possession.

Preliminary hearings for Elmer Eugene Blankenship and Paul Brown, charged with felonious stealing, were reset for March 14, due to the absence of the attorney for the defense.

Roy E. Matheney Jr. paid a $50 fine for possession of intoxicating beverages by a minor and a $10 fine for improper registration. A charge of felonious assault was dismissed.

Randy D. Moore was fined $150 on a reduced charge of careless and imprudent driving.

Preliminary hearing was set on March 14 for Raymond Holweg on a charge of disturbing the peace.

Jacob Cecil Vancil of Bloomfield paid a $15 fine for careless and imprudent driving and failure to yield the right of way, resulting in an accident.

The Bible says the harp was invented by Jubal. It was the musical accompaniment for the psalms of the ancient Jews and was played by David.

More puppies need masters

The city pound has more puppies awaiting adoption this week. Anyone who wants to adopt a dog may contact humane officer Bob Beardsley at the Sikeston police department. After 5 p.m. and on weekends, he may be contacted at home.

Additional charges filed in recent Madrid thefts

NEW MADRID — Additional felony charges, stemming from a series of recent thefts, have been filed against three New Madrid Route One youths, George Dawson, Ernest Lee Minehart and James Michael Hall, and two other Route One youths Dean Pipkin and Ricky Ling have been charged with felonious stealing.

Hall, Minehart and Dawson were bound over to Circuit Court Tuesday to stand trial in two felony cases in connection with the tampering of motor vehicles and felonious stealing. Hall and Minehart posted $500 bonds on each of the charges and were released.

Dawson, who is on probation and ineligible to be released on bond, remains in custody of the New Madrid County sheriff's department.

Another felonious stealing charge was filed Wednesday against the three youths, stemming from a theft on Jan. 27 of a 40 horse power outboard motor, gasoline tanks and lawn mower, valued together at $300, which belonged to Carl Parks of New Madrid.

Dawson and Minehart are accused of feloniously tampering with a pickup truck on Jan. 22, which belonged to Bill Taylor of Taylor Towing Co. in New Madrid, by removing two tires and wheels, plus felonious stealing of assorted hand tools, a grinder and a jack valued together at $300.

Preliminary hearings in Magistrate Court were waived by Dawson and Minehart. The latter was released after posting $500 bonds on each charge.

Hall posted $500 bond and is scheduled to reappear in court Monday.

Pipkin and Dawson are charged with theft on Jan. 25 of a five- ton air conditioning unit valued at $600. The unit belonged to Ralph Lewis of New Madrid and reportedly was stolen from a new house under construction.

Each waived preliminary hearing and were bound over to Circuit Court. Pipkin was released when he posted a $500 bond.

Ling was released on a $500 bond posted on a felonious stealing charge. He is scheduled to reappear Monday in Magistrate Court.

He is accused of stealing one 16- foot disc cylinder, two large six- volt batteries, two large 12- volt batteries, another 12- volt battery, a half- inch drill, a 24- inch crescent wrench and one case of motor oil owned by LaValle Farms and valued together at $200.

Most of the stolen itemss have been recovered, according to the New Madrid County sheriff's department.

DAEOC elections to be held Monday

PORTAGEVILLE— Delta Area Economic Opportunity Corporation will hold elections Monday to select members of the board of directors to represent the poor at each of the 12 area opportunity centers operated by DAEOC in the six- county delta area.

Two board members from each of the lower three counties will be selected. Each of the two centers in Pemiscot, Dunklin and New Madrid counties will elect one board member.

The upper three counties of Scott, Stoddard and Mississippi will have one elected board member per county. The two centers in each county will elect their own area representatives.

Another election will be held from 6 to 8:30 p.m. Feb. 11 to select one of the two persons who receive the most votes in Monday's election to serve as the elected board member from that county.

Persons nominated for the elections must be from the low- income group or their elected representative, since the persons elected to the DAEOC board will represent the poor of the six- county area.

2 Dunklin Countians hurt in 3-vehicle crash

SENATH— Two Dunklin County men were injured in a three- vehicle traffic accident one and a half miles west of here Friday.

Ivy Virgil Bearden, 63, of Senath was seriously injured at 11:30 a.m. when his truck was struck head on by a car driven by Darris A. Deran of Arbyrd who received minor injuries. A third driver, Don Bearden, 28, of Senath, whose truck also was struck by the Deran automobile escaped injury.

According to the highway patrol, Deran was driving west on Route P at a high rate of speed when he lost control of his car and collided with the Bearden trucks which are believed to have been parked on the side of the road.

Ivy Bearden was taken to the Dunklin County Memorial Hospital in Kennett, then transferred to Campbell's Clinic in Memphis. Deran also was treated at the Dunklin County hospital.

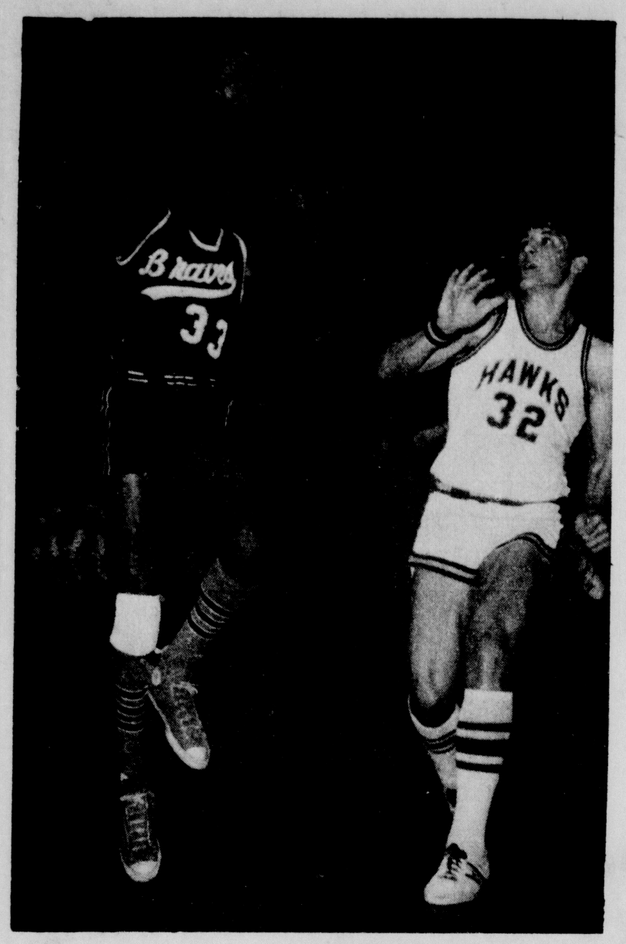
Dogs lose in double overtime



Brave on war path

Scott Central's Otto Porter (33) goes in for easy layup against Kelly's Russ Mothershead (32) in action Friday night as the sophomore was inserted into the Braves lineup for the first time and led the SCHS team in scoring with 17 points and blocked a couple of shots in the game.

DEXTER-- The Sikeston Bulldogs, who have been much maligned by grownups, students and yes, even the press, showed heart Friday night while dropping a 69- 64 decision to coach Jim Hall's Bearcats in two overtimes. Outstanding games were turned in by two Bulldogs in particular, Vangalee West and Mark Eaves, although the entire team came back from a horrendous start to play fine basketball in the second half.

The Bulldogs opened the game jittery, with bad passes and floor mistakes the rule. They committed eleven turnovers in the frame and went until nine seconds remained in the quarter before chalking up their fourth point. While Dexter wasn't shooting much better and Sikeston controlled the boards, the turnovers were enabling the Cats to roll up several easy layups and claim a 13- 4 first quarter lead.

The second quarter started out with more of the same. They expanded that lead to 13 at one time, 21- 8, and looked to be ready to blow SHS off the court. However, the Bulldogs called a time and regrouped their forces. Using their superior spped and the lack of a good ballhandler for Dexter, they hacked away at the lead and got it down to five, 23- 18. Then the fouls, which have killed Sikeston all year, cropped up again and the home team was able to can five charity tosses to end intermission with a ten point lead, 28- 18.

The small Dexter gym was a madhouse most of the second half and throughout the two overtime frames. The Bulldogs used a quickness advantage to swipe the ball several times, but were unable to keep a consistent defensive effort going, as has been the case many times this year. They would close to within three or four, then fall back again as Dexter shooters would slip behind defensive men who were unable to keep up. A 15- 11 third period scoring edge by Sikeston, narrowed Dexter's lead to six, 39- 33.

The Bulldogs completely took over in the last frame. Roy Bowman, who played the game on a lame knee and still ended with 14 points and a dozen rebounds, regained his scoring touch and connected for several long bombs, helping Sikeston take the lead for the first time. They expanded that margin to four points at 48- 44, but continued fouling by Sikeston and reluctance of the referees to call charging fouls on Dexter stymied the Bulldog offense and frustrated the Sikeston players. Sikeston, a team that usually draws 12 to 15 calls per game got just one against the Bearcats and the players obviously over reacted.

With a 51- 49 lead and holding the ball, Sikeston appeared to have the game won with some 20 seconds to go. But, Dexter swiped the ball and Don Reynolds connected from the lane to tie the score as the clock ran out.

The Bulldogs claimed the lead again at 57- 54, but four more free throws by Dexter tied the count at 58- all after the first overtime. Dexter connected on 12 of 16 free throws during the two periods, compared to four of six for Sikeston.

In the second overtime the fouls began to tell. Ronald Marks had fouled out in the first overtime and Mark Eaves and Vangalee West quickly followed him to the bench. Despite the absence of the three starters the team repeatedly fought back, staying with the tough Bearcats all the way. Finally the rebounding of Reynolds controlled the late game tempo and helped Dexter to pull away for the win.

Reynolds and Mark Clippard, who hit 10 of 13 free throws, both scored 20 points to lead Dexter. Vangalee West had his best night of the year, hitting from 20 feet out often enough to end the contest with 18 points. Bowman followed with 14 points, Marks scored 11 and the sophomore center, Mark Eaves, hit all five of his floor shots to ten points. Eaves, starting his second varsity tilt, also collared a dozen rebounds to tie Bowman to the team lead.

Sikeston outrebounded Dexter 44- 27 and shot a higher percentage, 47.5 to 36.7, but Dexter hit 25 of 36 free throws, compared to eight of 13 for SHS. The deciding factor in the game, however, and the reason Sikeston fell behind early was turnovers. The Bulldogs committed 30 to just 17 for Dexter.

Sikeston's B- team kept their conference record intact at 4- 0 with a first game 55- 48 win over the Dexter jayvees. The scoring for the junior Bulldogs was led by 6- foot- 2 inch sophomore Ed Nunnelee with 16 points, his top effort of the year. Ron Friday scored 13 and Hal Presley added 11. Mark Guethle scored 16 for Dexter

PARMA--- The steadily improving East Prairie Eagles came within one point of ending the PHS Pirates 15 game winning streak at home Friday evening, bowing to coach Mark Rascher's PHS quintet 65- 64.

Coach Steve Doran's EPHS Eagles claimed an 18- 13 lead in the first quarter and led for three quarters before the inside work of Rolly Perkins spoiled the visitors bid for the victory. Perkins ended the night with 25 big points and got 16 point backing from Rufus Barnes.

Leroy Bradley and Steve Husk teamed for 31 points, scoring 16 and 15 respectively, in leading the Eagles upset bid.

Richland surprised the Pirates in the openg period outscoring Matthews 18-10 but hit a cold spell in the second period and Matthews fired in 22 points to only seven for Richland and the Pirates led 32-25 at the intermission.

The Pirates padded their lead in the third quarter by scoring 20 points to 17 for the home team but the roof caved in on the Pirates in the last eight minutes of the game as Richland caught fire and played good defense to outscore the visitors 23-11 to take the game. It was the ninth win of the season for Richland against eight losses.

Both teams hit 28 field goals but Richland hit nine free shots to seven for Matthews.

Albert Brock and Ken Cain scored 21 and 18 points respectively for the winning Rebels and David Kenedy and Dwight Latham pumped in 16 and 17 points respectively for the Pirates.

Sikeston's Ron Marks (10) attempts to pass to an unshown teammate during Friday night's game at Dexter. His efforts are opposed by Bearcat guard Mark Clippard.

Hawks claw Braves

BENTON--- The Scott Central Braves revamped their team with the promotion of Otto Porter to the varsity team and the Braves played with the Kelly Hawks for three quarters before getting blown off the court in the fourth period and losing the Scott-Mississippi league game 75- 53 to the Daily Standard's top rated team.

Porter looked like a seasoned veteran as the 5- 11 jumping jack popped in 17 points to lead the Braves on offense.

Kelly had trouble finding the hole in the bucket in the first period but Scott Central had their problems as well and the Hawks outscored the Braves 18- 10. The scoring picked up somewhat in the second period as the Hawks' defense had trouble getting back on the fast break and the Braves fired in 23 points while Kelly again had offensive troubled and scored only 21 but led 39- 33 at the half.

Neither team could do much right in the third quarter and the scoring fell off quite a bit but Kelly hit their stride in the last period and dropped in 25 points to the Braves nine.

Mike Brasher hit the basket for 24 points on the night to lead all players on offense.

Scott Central edged the Hawks in the B game 64- 62 in a very close played ball game. McElmurry was high for the Hawks with 18 points and Winfield hit 24 for the Braves.

CARUTHERSVILLE — Richard Pitts scored 19 points and pulled down 18 rebounds to lead the CHS Tigers to a come- from-behind 57-56 decision over the Twin Rivers Royals Friday night.

Twin Rivers claimed a 19-16 lead in the first quarter, but failed to maintain that pace against the home town team and fell behind 35-32 at half and never regained its composure of the first period.

Coach Hugh James' Bengals had to claim the win at the charity stripe, claiming a 5-2 edge in that department, while the Royals held a 27-26 edge from the field.

The victory raised the Tigers season record to 8-9.

Caruthersville started the evening with a rousing 56-29 victory over the Royals behind the 14 point leadership of Kenneth Knox.

Blaylock honored

KANSAS CITY-- Gary Blaylock of Malden, Mo., has been named the Kansas City Royals Eastern Scouting Director, according to a release from the Royals front office.

Blaylock, who joined the Royals as a scout in 1968, has doubled as a scout and manager the last three seasons. He has led Billings, Mont., to Pioneer Leage Championships each of the last two summers, and was selected Manager- of- the-Year both times. He guided the Mustangs to a runnerup finish in 1971.

Blaylock pitched 14 seasons professionally, including stints with the St. Louis Cardinals and New York Yankees in 1959, then managed for five years before joining the Royals.

The Southeast Missouri native signed Mark Little of Gideon, one of the Royals most promising youngsters in their minor league camp, and has a son, Gary Jr., in the Yankees organization.

Smelser hits 34

BERNIE--- Andy Smelser had his biggest night of the season as the flashy junior popped in 34 points as the Risco Tigers edged the Bernie Mules 58- 53 here Friday night.

The difference in the game was at the free throw line as Risco hit eight and Bernie only three after both teams hit 25 shots from the field.

High scoring Ruben White ran into early foul trouble and eventually fouled out in the fourth period and ended the game with only 12 points on the night and Joe Stuever had to take up the offensive balance with 21 points.

Risco took a one point lead, 12- 11 after the first period and held on for the win. Bernie never threatened in the game until midway in the fourth period as the Mules outscored the Tigers 12- 11.

Risco won the B game 49-40 with Kevin scoring 11 and Charles Johnson hit 14.

Today in U.S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Saturday, Feb. 2, the 33rd day of 1974. There are 332 days left in the year. This is Groundhog Day.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1848, Mexico ceded a vast area to the United States for $15 million. Included was what is now Texas, New Mexico, Arizona and California.

On this date:

In 1535, the Argentine city of Buenos Aires was founded.

In 1635, New Amsterdam was incorporated by the Dutch.

In 1808, French forces occupied Rome after Pope Pius VII refused to recognize the Kingdom of Naples and join an alliance against Britain.

In 1870, doctors revealed that the so-called Cardiff Giant, discovered on a farm near Cardiff, N.Y., was not a petrified human being but a hoax.

Deaths

ROBERT H. LAPLANT

NEW MADRID — Services for Robert Henry LaPlant, 52, a cabinet maker who died sometime after 8 p.m. Thursday in a fire which destroyed his mobile home nine miles east of New Madrid in the Barnes Ridge Community, are scheduled for 2 p.m. Sunday in Richards Funeral Home. The Rev. Earl G. Statler, pastor of First United Methodist Church, will officiate.

Burial will follow in Evergreen Cemetery.

A life- long resident of New Madrid, he was born Oct. 3, 1921 to Mrs. Hazel Fitzgerald of 412 Powell St., Sikeston, and the late Welton LaPlant.

He was a 1940 graduate of New Madrid High School.

Other survivors include one son, Robert Welton LaPlant of Milan, Mich.; two sisters, Mrs. Helen Monan of Sikeston and Mrs. Vera Sargent of Davison, Mich., and one grandson.

Hospital director resigns

DEXTER— Dexter Memorial Hospital announced Friday that Jack Norman has resigned as administrator to take a position as administrator of Lucerne Hospital in Orlando, Fla., and will leave Dexter on March 2 to assume his new responsibilities.

Norman has been administrator of Dexter Memorial Hospital since November 1970 following previous employment as materials manager of the University of Missouri Medical Center at Columbia.

In announcing his new position, Norman stated that he based his decision on the opportunity for advancement in the medical administration field and the opportunity to spend more time with his family in a growing recreational area.

The board of directors, with assistance from Norman, will appoint a personnel committee to secure a new administrator for the Dexter facility.

Cabinet Rejectee

Roger Brooke Taney of Maryland was the first Cabinet appointee rejected by the U.S. Senate. Taney was proposed by President Jackson for secretary of the treasury in 1834.

trying to ride a donkey and shoot a basketball at the same time, but while in the hospital, I also underwent a two-hour "brain scan."

I still believe fate is trying to tell me that I should be in show business, because on the side of the huge brain - scanning machine was printed "Dot Recording."

Now I can truthfully tell my friends that I underwent my own two - hour "Dot recording session." You'll have to admit Dot's not a bad label for your first recording.

If it's ever released, the emphasis will more than likely be on the "flip" side.

A week in the hospital is an education within itself, and I hope to continue this series to report on some of the interesting people I met while there.

But, let me leave you with a moral to my story. It was given to me by a mortician friend of mine, Tom Doherty of Kennett, who incidentally is also Dunklin County coroner.

He sent me word that "it pays to stay off your boss's ass."

Couple faces gun charges

William Travis James and his wife, Lula Bell James, were arrested at 5:35 p.m. Friday and have been charged with displaying a dangerous and deadly weapon in a threatening manner, according to police.

Police said James, who is a student in the adult basic education trining program at Sikeston High School, was informed by his instructor, Woody Winchester that a lady was at the school waiting to see him.

After James left to see his visitor, Winchester noticed that the door had been left open, and when he went over to shut it, he saw Mrs. James pointing a gun at her husband and called the police.

James took the gun away from his wife and threw it on the ground. Mrs. James picked up the gun and was holding it when police arrived.

Police said the gun was not loaded.

Mr. and Mrs. James were released after posting bonds of $110 each. Arraignment is scheduled Thursday in City Court.

The peace symbol, an inverted "Y" in a circle, originally represented the semaphore code for ND (nuclear disarmament).

No. 2

Ralph Uthlaut, R-New Florence, that would have provided power to subpoena records of suppliers who bring fuel into the state, along with a penalty clause, was defeated.

Also defeated was the committee substitute bill. When it came to a vote on the housepassed fuel monitoring bill, Sen. William Cason, D-Clinton, referred the bill to the budget control committee.

Later, the Senate soundly defeated the bill, reconsidered the vote and defeated it again.

The House gave one-sided support to a bill allowing right turns on red lights and sent it to the governor.

The measure would not interfere with local option by cities who could forbid right turns on red lights. The bill also allows the State Highway Commission to prohibit such turns on state roads.

What's the Difference?

Black and green teas differ only in the curing process, green tea being what teamakers call unfermented tea and black tea is fermented.

8-party lines to be eliminated

Improved telephone service will be available in the near future to many Sikeston customers with the elimination of eight- party lines, according to Mike Smith, manager of Southwestern Bell Telephone Company's Sikeston office.

"Added facilities here make it possible to offer customers throughout the Sikeston exchange lines that will have no more than four parties per line," Smith said. "I'm sure this is good news for our eight- party customers."

He also observed that the improvement will benefit all Sikeston customers since persons calling former eight-party numbers are less likely to encounter busy signals.

Smith stated that, in most cases, the added cost of better service will be nominal compared with the improvement and added privacy the change in service offers.

Basic monthly charge for four- party service in Sikeston is $4.65, plus tax and mileage, if applicable, Smith said.

The manager stated that each customer in Sikeston that currently has an eight-party line will be contacted personally by a Southwestern Bell representative to discuss the change in detail.

"We hope our Sikeston customers will be pleased with this service improvement," Smith said.

Making it Legal

Although it is customary for a woman to assume her husband's name, she is under no legal obligation to assume her husband's name when she marries.

Reorganization bill wins final approval

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri House and Senate gave final approval Friday to a state government reorganization bill that the governor says he will sign.

The action Friday ended many days of often bitter debate and a week of conference table negotiations.

The House sent it to the governor on a 141-4 vote, with Reps. Richard DeCoster, DCanton, Vernon Bruckerhoff, RSt. Mays, Jerold Drake, DGrant City, and Walt Mueller, R-Kirkwood voting against.

Passage came 4½ hours before the midnight Friday deadline for the 61-day special session. Both Houses closed up shop until 4 p.m. Monday.

Rep. Robert Snyder, R-Kirkwood, the minority floor leader of the House said Bond would sign the bill after approval by the House.

Gov. Christopher S. Bond vetoed a reorganization bill that was passed by the legislature in the 1973 session. When he called the special session Dec. 3, Bond made reorganization the top issue for consideration.

He said he didn't like the original Senate version, passed in December, but preferred a bill passed by the House. There was much trading off and compromising done Friday by the 10 House and Senate conferees.

The Senate passed the conference committee bill 29-2. The only negative vote came from Democrat Earl Blackwell of Hillsboro and James Noland, Republican from Osage Beach.

Cason called the bill the best that could be obtained through the spirit of compromise. He said objections would be raised by many concerning parts they didn't like and he expected much future legislation. "We'll be reorganizaing from here on," Cason said.

Approval cleared the way for adjournment of the special session. Gov. Christopher S. Bond has said he plans to begin working on reorganization in the next few weeks and willvhave most of it completed by April. Reorganization of the executive branch into 14 large departments was approved by the voters in 1972.

The Senate passed and sent to the governor two other special session bills.

One bill calls for the state speed limit to be lowered to 55 miles an hour on March 4 and the other would allow counties to buy fuel and other supplies on a negotiated basis when bids are not available because of the energy crisis.

The Senate also passed a bill to allow right turns on red lights. It was amended to allow the Highway Department to prohibit some right turns and the bill was sent back to the House.

Delaying an agreement on government reorganization was the Senate's stand that the Division of Welfare director should have Senate consent and the Tourism Commission should have independent authority in hiring personnel and adopting its budget, and the commissioners should have Senate advice and consent.

A House-passed bill to have the Public Service Commission monitor fuel supplies in the state was defeated 25-3. A Senate committee had offered an amendment to the bill, taking PSC enforcement out, but it was rejected. The only affirmative votes for the bill were from Sens. A. Clifford Jones, RBrentwood, Maurice Schechter, D-Creve Coeur, and Donald Gralike, D-St. Louis.

The fuel monitoring bill had been heavily lobbied against by the petroleum industry. It was supported by Gov. Christopher S. Bond.

Several senators fought to have the Senate substitute version of the fuel monitoring bill passed. These included Democrats Donald Manford of Kansas City, William Waters of Liberty and Albert Spradling of Cape Girardeaul.

Others said the substitute version would be so weak it would be useless.

It would be "less effective than a resolution on a basketball team," said Sen. A. Clifford Jones, R-Brentwood.

Retail controls lifted

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government Friday removed price and wage controls on retail establishments which make about one-fourth of all retail sales in the nation.

Remaining under controls are food stores, retailers of petroleum and petroleum products, retail sales of motor vehicles, parts and equipment, and larger eating and drinking establishments.

In announcing the action, the Cost of Living Council said that 10 of the largest retailing firms have made commitments that they will maintain their pre-tax operating profit margins through next Aug. 1.

Chairman John T. Dunlop of the council told a news conference that he does not anticipate drastic price increases to result from the decontrol action.

He said the pledges by the 10 large firms to maintain their past profit margins "undoubtedly will have a restraining effect on price increases across the entire industry."

Today set to honor Guard

To kick off a stage recruiting drive, today has been designated as National Guard Day.

Mayor Frank Ferrell signed a proclamation Friday declaring the special day in Sikeston to honor all members of the Missouri Army National Guard for "their faithful and dedicated service to the community, state and nation, to encourage all citizens of Missouri eligible to serve in the National Guard to consider the advantages and opportunities of such service."

The recruiting drive, "Operation Fill -up," will be carried on throughout the month of February, but will be more concentrated Feb. 2 -17.

Persons who would like to see what the guard does during monthly weekend drills are invited to visit the National Guard Armory, 300 S. Main St., today and Sunday, while Company C of the 1140th Engineer Battalion is meeting.

A recruiter for the Sikeston Company will be at the Armory from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. Feb. 2 -17 to answer any questions about the Army National Guard.

The Missouri Army National Guard is trying to recruit 700 men and women with or without prior service in the armed forces.

The proclamation states that Feb. 2 has been declared National Guard Day because the Missouri Army National Guard is the first line backup force to the active Army, and the guard is "ready to serve and defend the citizens of Missouri in times of natural disasters and other emergencies."

Democrats plan no Watergate letup

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Mike Mansfield said Friday night the federal courts must pursue "the crimes of Watergate" as long as it takes to deal with Nixon administration scandals.

The Senate Democratic leader pledged Congress will deal fully this year with the question of impeaching President Nixon while giving first attention to a legislative agenda aimed at leading the nation to "a decent future."

Delivering the Democratic response to Nixon's State of the Union speech, Mansfield rejected Nixon's statement that "one year of Watergate is enough" and his plea for a prompt end to congressional and judicial probes of the scandal.

"Whether it is months of years," the Montana Democrat said, "there are no judicial shortcuts."

Mansfield spoke to the nation from his office, across the Capitol from the House chamber where Nixon presented his speech to a joint session of Congress.

After his speech, the Senate leader, his party's designated spokesman to answer Nixon, responded to questions from a panel of radio and television newsmen.

Mansfield listed election, tax and pension reform; health insurance; and a minimum wage increase as primary goals in the 1974 legislative program and expressed hope that President Nixon's $304.4-billion budget due Monday can be cut.

He called for public support for congressional efforts to clean up what he called "the campaign-financing mess." He declared "we shall not finally come to grips with the problem except as we are prepared to pay for the public business of elections with public funds."

Mansfield said that "what Watergate did to public confidence with regard to the nation's politics, the energy crisis has done in the realm of the nation's economy."

He added that "the immediate responsibility of government is to make certain that the shortage does not devastate the economy and that the price of past neglect is borne equitably by all Americans.

"If that means rationing, then let us not hesitate to use this device," Mansfield said, a contrast with Nixon's vow "to do everything we can to avoid gasoline rationing."

Mansfield said the events of the past year "have underscored the wisdom" of the nation's judgment in 1972 when it returned Democrats to control of Congress while giving Nixon and the Republicans a presidential landslide.

Citing congressional action to halt U. S. bombing of Cambodia and limit presidential war powers, Mansfield said the 93rd Congress' first session succeeded in acting to limit what he turned "an ominous shift to one- branch government."

"The erosion of the system of checks and balances was halted," he said. "A greater congressional impact began to be registered on all of the basic decisions of the federal government."

While devoting most of his prepared speech to major domestic and foreign concerns, Mansfield raised the Watergate question, and what he called "the related questions of impeachment and resignation," early in his remarks.

As for the question of resignation, he said: "The President has stated his intentions bluntly in that regard" by vowing to serve out the remainder of his second four- year term.

"Insofar as the Congress is concerned," Mansfield added, "that closes the matter of resignation."

"Impeachment is the responsibility of the Congress," Mansfield added, declaring "it is being handled properly and deliberately."

In what amounted to a pledge to make sure the matter is resolved one way or another by the end of 1974 and not permitted to drag on, he said: "I would anticipate that it will be dealt with fully in this session."

Mansfield said "The question of impeachment and the matters of the Watergate hearings create enormous responsibilities for the Congress.

"As for the crimes of Watergate— and there were crimes," Mansfield said, "they cannot be put to rest by Congress. Nor can any words of the President's or from me mitigate them.

"The disposition of crimes is a function of the Justice Department and the courts," he continued, declaring that as far as he can tell, Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski "is doing his job and so, too, are the courts."

Exchange Club plans

Crime prevention drive in Sikeston

Throughout the next week, area business establishments will be visited by Sikeston Exchange Club members to seek cooperation for the upcoming National Crime Prevention Week. This year, National Crime Prevention Week will be observed Feb. 10 through 16.

Following a proclamation by the Mayor Frank Ferrell, the week will be officially observed by the citizens of Sikeston. A week- long community program has been established as a basis for year- around crime prevention practices.

This year's theme is "Crime is the loser ... when you know the game rules!" Posters bearing this slogan will be seen throughout the community in the coming week as a reminder to each individual citizen that when this slogan, seen or heard, he or she will be prompted to take action.

This is the 27th year that Exchange has sponsored its annual crime prevention program. However, this year represents Sikeston's first effort in the program.

"We know that crime prevention programs are having their effect," Duane DeCota, Sikeston Exchange Club president, said. "A very important point is greater citizen awareness of the criminal problem. The result is more enthusiastic support of anti- crime measures."

Local area law enforcement agencies will be active in this program throughout Crime Prevention Week, with an open house planned at the police station for interested citizens, assembly meetings at various public schools, public showings of films at Sikeston Activity Center and visits with area business merchants to discuss means for combating and controlling shoplifting.

"It's important that everyone get involved, that's why we are going to give it our all this year," DeCota added.

Sidelined editor surprised that Standard presses keep rolling

By TONY PIPPEN

By now, you're probably wondering what happened to that whiz-bang managing editor, without whom most people thought The Daily Standard would probably fall flat on its face within a week.

Most people — in this case — were actually my mother and me, and to tell the truth, I had already begun to have my doubts.

The easiest way to discover how unimportant you really are is to do something silly enough to take you out of action for a couple of weeks.

Well you ask, what happened to me?

Since meeting Howard Cosell at Disney World late last year, I believe in telling it like it is -- so, here's the way it happened.

I fell flat on my face!

Well, again, that's not exactly what happened. But if I told you what I fell from, you might fall flat on your face.

Maybe I had better back up and fill you in on a few preliminaries.

My boss, Charles Blanton III, henceforth to be known as III, asked me to play with him and other businessmen in a donkey basketball game in January to raise money for a math scholarship.

That's when it all started.

Before taking to the basketball court, III said he and I would be riding a donkey called "Killroy".

"We'll take turns riding," III told me. "I'll ride the first five minutes and then you come in for about five, then I'll take over again."

Killroy and III didn't seem to hit it off, so after about 8 seconds, III beckoned me on to the court -- I also had my ups and downs with Killroy. For some strange reason, Killroy preferred me more on the floor than on his back.

Killroy must have known when my five minutes were up because the last thing I remember was sailing over his head before being abruptly stopped by the floor. My left arm took the full force of my body.

That was my first "break" in show biz. A hospital x-ray revealed that the "break" was slightly below my left shoulder bone.

Dr. Max Heeb, whom everyone I've talked to, says is a very good bone surgeon, was called to my rescue at the hospital. Because of the type of break, he placed a "hanging cast" below the break and ordered me to let my arm hang.

The purpose of this, he told me, is to let the bone fuse together when it becomes sticky. He warned that I would have to endure a degree of pain, but the outcome would be more successful. Because of this, I'm forced to sleep in an inclining position -- never flat.

We'll leave it to your judgment as to the connection between my

ONE WAY TO SAVE FUEL

All is not lost. The artistic world — at least a well defined segment of it — has been telling us for the past decade what to do with our old gas drinking clunkers.

And you can become famous and gather up a few shekels without using one gallon of gasoline or a quart of oil.

First you get yourself a welding outfit. Don't forget the protective hood. It will save your eyes from the sparks and glare of the welding flame.

The dark glasses might also save you some embarrassment after you have finished the job. On second thought, we seriously doubt that because if you are a devotee of this kind of "sculpture" you will probably think it's beautiful.

But to get back to the nitty gritty of this thing, after you get a welding outfit the rest is easy.

Simply knock your old auto or truck into various pieces or go to an auto junkyard and pick out a couple of armfuls of fenders, doors, radiators, pipes and irons.

Since we never did try our hand at this sort of thing, we didn't really know whether you start with an idea and weld all this junk together or just weld it together and give it a name.

A recent newspaper article describing a show of this kind said:

"Some of the sculptures are small and tightly packed, like wads of paper, and are placed on pedestals. Others are large, rest on the floor and are most expansive in form, like giant spreading growths — villainous substances, perhaps in some technicolor science fiction fantasy.

"... at once seductive and repellent they are fascinating but not friendly to the eye."

We suppose that this sort of junk art is a part of the pseudo intellectual revolution against the way of life on which this country was founded.

It can be compared to the honest beauty found in the expressions of so many of our true artists who eke out a small existence in every city, town and hamlet of this nation.

We hope America will soon forget this fad of the blow torch because even if it is art in the eyes of some, it's still junk.

WHAT'S A FEW MORE LINES?

The government of Israel has lodged three formal complaints with the International Committee of the Red Cross charging Syria and Egypt with the "crimes of murder and mutilation committed on the person of Israeli prisoners of war" captured during the October fighting.

The complaints document numerous incidents of the close- range execution of stripped, blindfolded and bound Israeli soldiers and the physical abuse of others — enough to warrant the charge that these were not random occurences but the product of official policy by Syria and Egypt in violation of the Geneva Convention.

Syria, of course, continues to refuse even to release the names of the Israeli POWs it still holds.

The details make distressing reading, even in an age that has become hardened to the atrocities of war. But a world that permits terrorists to hijack airplanes or blow up airplanes or gun down innocent people or permits its very economic well- being to be put in jeopardy at the whim of oil- rich Arabs is not likely to become indignant over such an insignificant thing as the murder of a few Israeli soldiers.

In sum, Israel's complaints, plus about 15 cents, will buy it a cup of sympathy at the bar of world opinion.

STRIPPING AWAY ILLUSIONS

What price ecology?

Just for the state of Ohio, just to reclaim all abandoned surface and underground coal mines by the year 2000, it will cost $623 million.

That is the price tag placed on the project by the Ohio Board of Unreclaimed Strip Mined Lands.

Originally, the board had reported that it would take 95 years to reclaim surface- mined lands alone at a cost of $283 million. But the availability of additional funds from the federal government led it to recommend that the project be shortened to 26 years and include cleaning up deep mines, which are responsible for most of the acid mine drainage in the state.

The figure of $623 million seems reasonable enough, if thousands of acres of barren land can be returned to forests or farms or recreational areas and streams be purified.

But it would have been even more reasonable if men had had the foresight years ago to place a tax of a few pennies a ton on coal to pay for reclamation at the time the coal was removed.

Today, this energy- hungry, pollution - conscious nation is eyeing the vast, low- sulfur coal deposits of the West where, because of climatic conditions, ecologists estimate that it will cost as much as $14,000 an acre to reclaim strip-mined land.

We can have our coal and our ecology, too. But we will have to pay for it as we go, not leave it up to future generations.

As a consequence of the Watergate affair, we are told that the way to end influence peddling in government, to end the buying of politicians by special interests, is through outlawing of the evil private contribution, and the public funding of federal campaigns.

Beating the drums for this latest reform is Mr. John Gardner, chairman of the "People's Lobby," Common Cause. In his latest bulletin, he transports us -- in two pages -- back to the 60s, to the days of our political youth.

"Two of the most dangerous threats to democracy," he writes, "(1) the power of money to buy results and (2) secrecy to hide underhanded dealings from the public."

This would lead us to believe that we are indeed on the threshold of the New Jerusalem if we will but harken to the voice of the Prophet.

Again, Mr. Gardner, several paragraphs later:

"We're on the verge of a new era in American politics -- an era typfied by a new honesty and openness in government. You have a choice. Do nothing -- and we slip back into the morass of corruption in government. Or take a strong positive step - join Common Cause -- and you help launch that new era."

Well a $15 contribution to join Common Cause seems a small price to pay -- to help launch a "new era." But what is the reality?

First, that since money replaced barter, money has purchased influence, and the practice will not vanish from the earth because Congress decides to pass another law.

The corrupt politician, businessman, or union boss looking to purchase some influence in government is not going to stop shopping around because Mr. Gardner and the Congress have ruled out campaign contributions as the currency of exchange.

As Patrick J. Buchanan outlined in a speech at Sangamon State University, Springfield, Ill., recently:

'The more likely outcome of outlawing private contributions, or severely limiting same, while forcing the public to fund federal elections is:

"(1) A diminution in the freedom of individuals to participate in the political process, by shutting down the only avenue open to tens of thousands who cannot work in a campaign.

"(2) The creation of yet another federal agency, siphoning off tax dollars, staffed by the kind of $30,000 - a- year professional bureaucrat who supports Common Cause.

"(3) An increase in the tax burden on the average citizen who, if the citizens lobby gets its way, will end up not only paying the cost of federal elections, but the salaries of Mr. Gardner's federal election police as well.

"(4) Yet another shift of power away from individuals and over to government -- and of resources out of the paychecks of private citizens and private institutions and into the bank accounts of federal bureaucrats.

"(5) Lastly, the disillusionment that follows when still another 'reform' fails to usher in the 'new era' we were promised."

The question that needs to be asked is this: Does not restoration of a healthy respect for government require not only that government cease expanding its role in our national life, but that government begin a strategic retreat all along the political front.

In the estimation of many Americans, there is truly a "crisis of confidence" in government. But a healthy skepticism remains in order. This is not the first time we have suddenly learned of some new "crisis" in our domestic affairs.

Yet, time and again the principal beneficiaries of the programs to resolve these "crises" turn out to be not the poor, but the poverty professionals, not the people who pay the bill, but the bureaucrats and consultants, the subcontractors and builders, the counselors and social workers whose numbers multiply and fill the earth.

IT IS FAIR, EVEN IF LATE

Democratic House Speaker Richard Rabbit has given Republicans a proportional representation on House committees. It brings Republican committee members to 40%, whereas it has been only 20%.

In a representative form of government like ours, it is imperative that minorities have the proportionate representation to which they are entitled by a vote of the people.

Speaker Rabbit's action is a just and heartening one, even if it is several years late.

Now if the rest of our Democrat and Republican Representatives and Senators will demonstrate the same fair attitude toward the other side of the political fence, we'll get needed action instead of damaging bickering at Jefferson City.

GERALD FORD SHOULD STAY OUT OF WATERGATE

It is only natural for Vice - President Gerald Ford to defend and stand by the man who put him in his present post and whose policies he supports in the first place. It is also customary for the vice- president to serve as mouthpiece for the administration and voice the tough policies a President, himself, may not wish to express. Spiro Agnew did that for Richard Nixon and Hubert Humphrey did it for Lyndon B. Johnson.

But Vice - President Ford is not in a natural situation and the administration cannot continue to regard the office of the vice - presidency as operating from the same old stand.

A vice- presidential candidate normally is chosen by a nominating convention indirectly and by the individual who is running for the top spot in reality. The voters then make their decision on this team, with probably 99 per cent of the consideration given the person who is running for President. Thus it is a political matter, a condition concerning partisan politics from the beginning, and with the vice- president a creature of partisan machinery.

Whether, after the election, the vice - president ought to be regarded as administration flunky and general errand boy is another matter. That is the tradition, but surely it is a bad one, a source of great discontent and a waste of talent.

There can be little debate, however, whether Gerald Ford can serve as a White House functionary and also serve the interests of the nation. He cannot do both.

Ford is not the usual geographical choice of a convention or President who then rode into office on the coattails of the primary candidate. He was the first vice- president ever to be chosen under the 25th Amendment and he was confirmed by a vote of Congress only after an extensive investigation and vigorous debate. He was named by a President in trouble who now faces the prospect of impeachment and the possibility of trial and removal. He followed a vice- president who was forced out of office by the circumstances of his own actions and the sentence of a court of law.

So whatever his private feelings and own wishes at this difficult moment, Vice - President Ford plays no proper role in offering opinions on guilt or innocence or defending anyone in matters now before the House Judiciary Committee or the court of Judge John J. Sirica. The administration has no right to expect him to do so. It has, if anything, the duty to keep him outside this sordid arena.

For whatever his value as a potential President, the chief quality of Gerald Ford at this point is his dissociation with what has come to be known as Watergate and attempts to cover it up. If he becomes a White House apologist, he will be ruined.

JACK ANDERSON SAYS: Gainesville 8 Spy Tells His Tale

WASHINGTON — The FBI's star witness in the Gainesville Eight case has charged that the federal prosecutor was a "bigot" who called black jurors "niggers," yet plied them with steak dinners in hopes they would vote guilty.

The jury unanimously acquitted the eight, most of them Vietnam vets, in less than four hours. They had been accused of trying to disrupt the 1972 GOP convention in Miami.

The chief government witness was an FBI informer named William Walter Lemmer. A few days ago, he surfaced in Dallas, where he sought a job with the weeklypaper "Iconoclast."

The publisher, Doug Baker, interviewed Lemmer on tape with his consent. With no holds barred, Lemmer answered questions to prove he is no longer an FBI spy. A 60-page transcript of Lemmer's revelations has now been given to us exclusively.

DRANK TOO MUCH

"I was kind of happy" over the acquittal, Lemmer said. The chief prosecutor, Assositant U. S. Attorney Jack Carrouth, drank too much and was a "bigot," explained the former witness for the prosecution, adding:

"This yoyo (Carrouth) comes out and says, deep Southern drawl 'Well, I know that we have at least two votes for conviction. We've been feeding those two damn niggers on the jury steaks for the past six weeks. By God, I know that we have at least two votes for conviction.'

"Well," observed Lemmer on the tape, "they fooled the -- out of him, because it was a unanimous vote ... for acquittal."

When we reached Carrouth in Florida, he told us: "I absolutely deny it." Then he recognized that to call Lemmer a liar was to impeach the man he used as his own top witness. "What can you do?" Carrouth drawled helplessly.

'BUNGLED BADLY'

On the tape, Lemmer said: "The case was bungled and bungled badly." Yet, when the verdict came in so quickly, "I was kind of stunned by the suddenness of the whole thing ... I wasn't ready to leave Florida ... I was sitting there at $36 a day (from the federal government) and I needed $200 more to finish paying for a little Triumph" sports car.

Lemmer said an informer's life is not an easy one. For one thing, the FBI insisted on information about whether "guys have sexual hangups ... It's a Hoover hangover."

The last J. Edgar Hoover often regaled President Lyndon Johnson with reports on the sexual improprieties of famous Americans. As a result of Hoover's interest, FBI files are spiced with sexual anecdotes about citizens, much of it rumor.

Lemmer also claimed the FBI brought him together with another witness in the trial -- a violation of court rules which prevent witnesses from discussing the case with each other while the trial is in progress. But Lemmer said his main advice to the other witness was: "Don't be nervous on the stand, man."

DIDN'T FOLLOW THROUGH

While Lemmer praised some of his FBI "handlers" for their decency and said one agent refused to carry out an unethical investigation of innocent Chicanos, Lemmer had harsh words for Justice Department circuit rider Guy Goodwin.

The hard - nosed Goodwin has made a career of spending hundreds of thousands of the taxpayers' dollars in unwise and unsuccessful cases against militants. Most of Goodwin's major cases have ended in acquittals.

Lemmer said Goodwin refused him support payments he had been promised. "The Justice Department did not follow through with their commitment to me," Lemmer complained.

He deined charges he got paid $14,000 for his services, plus rent and other expenses. "I barely spent $5,000 altogether," he said.

NOT PROUD

Reviewing his life as an FBI informer, Lemmer conceded that "during the trial I was a dirty ------." But now, he said, "I m not particularly proud of it .... It's hard to go around telling people, 'Hey, like I used to be a Justice Department spy."

"I see my position the same way I'm sure that (ex-White House counsel) John Dean saw his and like everybody else that got caught up in the little spy machinery ... I was involved in it. I admit it, you know. I'm not involved in it now. I never want to hear about it again."

FOOTNOTE: Despite Lemmer's protests of innocence, the Iconclast did not give him a permanent job. Editor Baker said the fear lingered that Lemmer would do to the newspaper what he did to the Vietnam vets.

In a statement to us, the FBI vehemently denied probing "sexual hangups." As for the meeting between Lemmer and the other witness, the FBI said the agents warned both men against talking about the case and were on hand to make sure the visit was no more than social small talk. The statement contended that the FBI no longer has any ties with Lemmer.

The Justice Department denied making support commitments to Lemmer and the FBI said it had routinely paid Lemmer as provided under law for services and expenses.

SACRIFICIAL ANIMALS: Defense Department experiments on the biological effects of radiation have cost the lives of more than 40,000 test animals since 1970.

The Pentagon brass, seeking criteria to predict casualties during a nuclear attack, have sacrificed 920 monkeys, 376 dogs 610 swine and 38,500 rodents over the last four years.

One study, involving 420 monkeys, pigs and dogs, determined the radiation dosage necessary to cause "permanet incapacitation" -- death, in non-Pentagonese language.

Researchers told us that animals receiving the highest doses of radiation usually died within three hours. Others made a temporary recovery before dying of acute radiation sickness.

A Pentagon spokesman said the tests were necessary to update the data gathered after the nuclear explosions at Hiroshima and Nagasaki in 1945.

FOOTNOTE: Countless more animals have died in other DefenseDepartment tests.

Which Crimes Worse? Mafia Romps -- and Kills -- In Impeachment Congressman's Home District

NEWARK, N. J. — This is not meant to reflect on the integrity of that spirited international parliamentarian, congressman Peter Rodino, chairman of the House Judiciary Committee now wrestling with the impeachment problem -- a fixed bout.

This is meant merely to suggest that when Rodino finishes the exercise in exorcising, he should look homeward to this rotting and corrupt and truly bloodstained city which is the bulk of his 10th Congressional District.

It is the power center of New Jersey, the Mafai's "corridor state," which in turn has been called the Cosa Nostra's playground and bedroom.

At least 17 men have been gang-killed in and around this city. In Newark's general area, others have disappeared. Some have been Mafia- executed over in New York. Still others in the mob have fled. There isn't a racket known to man which the tough organized crime families don't practice or conjure up here.

Yet the city and the congressional district are vital to the nation. There is the key Port of Newark, crucial for a network of industrial parks, unions and fuel supplies. There is the burgeoning Newark Airport. There are hundreds of thousands of folk of all color and creed gasping for living room -- decent housing.

And there certainly will be gory gunplay. The old leaders are dying, or dead, or in prison, as is the multi- millionaire Genovese family heir-apparent, 72 - year - old Jerry Catena. There are the alleged Mafia chiefs -- the aging Ruggiero (Richie the Boot) Boiardo and his son Anthony (Tony Boy) Boiardo. There are old enforcers of Murder, Inc.'s Longie Zwillman (who supposedly hanged himself) still influencing some unions -- as investigations soon will show.

It isn't pretty. It will get uglier. There is a vacuum of Mafia leadership. Gyp De Carlo is dead. So are most of the old Genovese dons. Those chieftains still alive are mostly fugitives, in prison or under indictment. The federals have nailed Simone Rizzo (Sam the Plumber) DeCavalcante.

Essex County, heart of Congressman Rodino's district, has for years been the gut of organized crime, a stronghold for crisscrossing mobs, gambling, extortion, hijacking, narcotics, cigarette smuggling and some labor terror. In the past it has been easy to identify the mob leadership. But with the aging and dying and imprisonment of the dons there isn't much centralized underworld power.

So the younger hoods now are battling for this power-- a struggle which will eventually affect the entire nation.

So, for the moment, put the spotlight on county prosecutor Joseph Lordi, a devout crusader. It was he, some five years ago, who dug up the rot on the corrupt and now imprisoned Democratic Mayor Hugh Addonizio and, for lack of staff and money, called for federal help.

Recently Joe Lordi petitioned the Essex County assignment judge for a special grand jury to probe the series of unsolved killings in the area. It was approved. And on Feb. 9, 23 men and women will be selected, a foreman and assistant foreman chosen, and the investigation will begin.

There will be an attempt to learn who killed whom. Why? How does all this fit into the pattern of organized crime? What are the power struggles? Why have the 17 gang killings gone unsolved? What political ties, if any, do the mobs and their killers have?

Lordi has a fine but small staff. And there are funds from the Justice Dept's Law Enforcement Assistance Administration.

But prosecutors, no matter how dedicated, live by more than money and manpower alone. They can use public, and certainly congressional, support.

This, after all, is Congressman Rodino's district. He has been its spokesman in the House for 25 years. Now that he has disclosed his dedication to investigation -- namely, the impeachment process -- he presumably will find time to dig into his home district.

Nor would it hurt if Congressman Joseph Minish, a former labor leader now representing the neighboring 11th District, would lend a hand. His district spills over into Essex County and one or two other areas in which the hoods play.

They might help create the atmosphere in which Joe Lordi could operate without interference. They might want to help discover how it happened that at least one company tied to an alleged Mafia heir was able to win a wiring contract on the Newark Federal Building in which the national law agencies operate -- and which was swept for "bugs" later to make certain the underworld combine wasn't listening in.

Certainly Congressman Rodino and his committee should make the punishment fit the crime where they find it in Washington. And that should go for the home districts, too. Over the years the Newark connection has been worth lots more than any French connection.

What's the law?

The case of the besieged umpire

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Roscoe, a baseball umpire, was considered no gem on the diamond, one afternoon, by certain of the local fans.

In face, during almost every other inning, the manager of the home team engaged him in an eye-ball-to-eye- ball confrontation over an alleged bad call.

As a result, by the end of the game, the hooting fans were so enraged at Roscoe that he required police protection to leave the stadium. Unfortunately, he didn't leave it unscathed. Two burly fans managed to break through his escort and lower the boom on him.

Sporting a pair of shiners, Roscoe blamed the incident on the manager of the home town team and sued him for his injuries.

"By repeatedly challenging my calls", complained Roscoe in court, "he fanned the fury of the fans and incited them against me."

"What did he expect me to do?" responded the manager of the home team. "Roscoe was calling balls and strikes like he needed a seeing eye dog. In protesting his calls, I was only doing my job as a manager."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you hold the manager liable for Roscoe's shiners?

This is how the Judge ruled: NO! The judge held that the unsportsmanlike act of the fans in attacking Roscoe was not so directly related to the manager's protests as to make him responsible.

"It would put an intolerable burden upon managers of baseball teams," noted the Judge in effect, "to saddle them with the responsibility for the actions of every emotionally unstable person who might become enraged over a protested call might or who might arrive at a game spoiling from a domestic upheaval."

80 participate in County Soils and Crops Conference

BLOOMFIELD -- At least 80 people participated in County Soils and Crops Conference held in Bloomfield Jan. 25. Soybean production was the principal feature of the program for this event.

Soybean varieties and fertilization were discussed by Tom Brown, area agronomy specialist. He cited the importance of using soybean cyst nematode resistant varieties and reported that average per -acre soybean yields had increased in Southeast Missouri during the period that they have been used in spite of widespread nematode infestation. He described the new Forrest and Tracey soybean varieties

He also emphasized the importance of the use of fertilizer and lime in accordance with soil needs as determined by soil test and outlined suggestions to help farmers realize maximum returns from the fertilizer available to them during the fertilizer shortage.

Two farmers and an extension specialist discussed weed control in soybeans. Albert Kruse of Dexter and Lloyd Francis of Painton reported that post -emergence treatments of Basagran, a new herbicide, had controlled cocklebur on their farms and showed colored slides to illustrate the control obtained.

Joe Scott, state agronomy specialist at the University of Missouri Delta Center in portageville, outlined recommendations of the University of Missouri College of Agriculture pertaining to weed control in soybeans and discussed results of research work conducted along his line at the Delta Center.

Jim Miller, a Dexter farmer, told the group how the soild fumigants, Fumazone and Nemagon, had proved profitable in the control of soybean cyst nematode on his farm.

Dr. Charles Baldwin, plant pathologist at the Delta Center, discussed the importance of controlling cyst nematode and diseases in soybeans in this area and outlined results of research work that he has conducted at the Delta Center pertaining to disease and cyst nematode control. He also showed symptoms of a number of diseases which affect soybeans in this area.

Farm management practices that will help to increase soybean profits were discussed by John Yount, area farm management specialist. Practices discussed in this connection included varieties, irrigation, disease control, harvesting and storage of soybeans.

Two subjects that apply to other crops as well as soybeans were discussed. These included the plant variety protection act discussed by Joe Scott, and the 1974 farm program described by Edwin Pulliam, county Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service executive director.

Hubert Swinger, county soils and crops conference committee chairman, was in charge of the program

Ann Landers

Some 'rude' hostesses have good intentions, not rocks in the head

Dear Ann Landers: The letter about the hostess of the cocktail party who excused herself, put on tennis shoes and climbed the ladder to the roof of her house to get a little boy's kite was beautiful. It reminded me of another wonderful lady. I'll love her to my dying day.

Many years ago my little brother had a bike accident four blocks from home. He cut his foot badly. He dragged himself to the nearest house. The woman who answered the door was having a party. When she saw my kid brother she put him in her car and drove him to the hospital. Then she called our house and found out I was home alone. So she came over and stayed with me until my parents arrived.

The doctor said if it hadn't been for that woman's quick thinking my brother would have lost his foot. So God bless another lady who was "rude" to her guests. -- Grateful.

Dear G.: Life can be lovely when people care about each other. Thanks for a heart warmer.

Dear Ann Landers: What can I do about a man 74 years old who keeps abusing me verbally and calling me unprintable names because he is now imagining things I did when I was a young girl?

We have been married for more than 50 years. There is absolutely no truth to his filthy accusations. I am a respectable person who deserves a little dignity and peace of mind in the evening of my life.

My husband was a notorious skirt- chaser in his younger years. Could this have something to do with it? I am at a loss to understand why he insists on going into these rages. His mind is perfectly fine otherwise. These name- calling episodes are the only symptons that he is not all there. Please advise. -- Wash., D. C.

Dear Wash: Sounds as if the ex-skirt- chaser's conscience might be bothering him and he is conveniently transferring his guilty to you.

Tune him out as you would a bit of nonsense on the radio or TV. Don't attempt to defend yourself or waste energy on denials. Accept the fact that in this one particular area he is bananas.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a faithful reader and I agree that people should get professional help when they feel they aren't able to cope. But don't you realize that most people can't afford it?

I am the mother of five children. I know I need to see a psychiatrist, but I keep bumping along, doing the best I can because there's no money for "professional help."

Millions of others are in the same situation. I hope you believe me because this is the way it is in the real world. -- Jersey Shore.

Dear Jersey: I receive thousands of letters every week from "the real world" and I do believe you. But I am baffled that a reader who described herself as a "faithful reader" would not know that I have addressed myself to this very problem dozens of times. Here is the answer -- AGAIN.

There are many places a person with limited (or no) financial resources can go for professional help. For the names of these places closest to your home, write to the National Institute of Mental Health, 9000 Rockville Pike, Rockville, Maryland. There are hundreds of County and State Mental Health Associations eager to help. Look in the phone book. Also look for Recovery, Inc., The Family Service Association, and The Catholic Charities. Good luck and get going.

Don't get burned by a "line" that's too hot to handle. Play it cool with Ann Landers's guide to "Necking and Petting -- What Are the Limits? Send your request to Ann Landers, P. O. Box 3346, Chicago, Illinois 60654, enclosing 50 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self- addressed envelope.

A wife's view of Jefferson City

By: Kay Cline

Wedding anniversaries are something special to us women and to some men. Before I married I always dreamed that anniversaries were special days to be remembered. It was a day set apart from all other days.

January 23 was our second wedding anniversary. It doesn't seem possible it has been two years. C. F. bought me a beautiful red three carnation corsage and had it delivered to me in his office at the capitol building. I was very pleasantly surprised. I love to receive flowers as gifts. I went down to the side gallery and C. F. introduced me from the chamber floor as his bride of two years. I spent the afternoon listening to the Representatives debate the reorganization bill.

When the legislators adjourned at 6:00 P.M., the Roads and Highways Committee went to Viet's Diamond Restaurant for refreshments and dinner. The wives who live here in Jefferson City with their husbands were asked to attend the dinner. Of course, I went with C. F. Before dinner the representatives and their wives sang "Happy Anniversary to You." This always embarrasses me and I felt like crawling under the table to hide. I did this as a child when the "Happy Birthday" song was sung to me. I thought if I did crawl under the table, it would embarrass C. F. so I stuck it out. I could feel myself blushing a deep shade of red.

The dinner was delicious and was served family style which included fried chicken, country ham and all the extra trimmings.

After dinner we went back to the Capitol Building's legislative library where the Roads and Highways Committee was meeting to hear three bills. The bills were heard, discussed and acted on in executive session. The executive sessions are now open to the public since the passage of the Sunshine Bill.

We arrived home at 11:00, stumbled to bed, thus ending a second anniversary. Wasn't this an exciting wedding anniversary! It certainly didn't turn out like I had hoped it would. However, the legislators are very busy with the two sessions going on. I am thankful that we were able to be together even if we did have to share our dinner with 30 other people.

WHOLE FAMILIES GET GOOD GRADES

GARDEN CITY, N.Y. (AP — A Nassau Community College survey indicates that the family which studies together gets good grades together. Dr. Robert Gwydir, vice president for academic affairs, observes that "academic families usually have good academic averages."

He considers that family enrollments at the Garden City campus are "getting down to the bedrock of community service." About 1,725 students are involved in these family enrollments.

Girl Scout directors asked to act

DEXTER—Miss Marion G. Burns of Kansas City, National Girl Scout regional consultant, a guest of the Cotton Boll Girl Scout Council board of directors at a luncheon business meeting of the board on Tuesday in Dexter, pointed out in her remarks that it is the responsibility of the membership of the board of directors "to know the Way, show the Way and go the Way."

The board's responsibility is to the council in providing services to members and in fulfilling its responsibility to the national council, she added.

Mrs. Thurston S. Hill, council president, presided during the meeting.

Miss Burns, who works with councils of the region, has had years of experience in working with Girl Scout councils, having served as executive director and other official positions of working directly with neighborhood councils and troops.

The speaker noted that, in this era of rapid change, it is of utmost importance that the Girl Scout program be geared to move with this rapid change. In order to meet this demand, close communication is required between the National Board of directors and the 385 councils in the United States, which is done through scheduled direct phone conversation with council presidents and communication through profile reports reflecting the needs and services offered by the council, she continued.

Miss Burns stressed the affirmative action phase of the council charter in assuming its reponsibility on program goals, services offered and composition of the population makeup of the area. To the council, the board members were reminded of their responsibility in serving as ex-officio members of Finance, Program and Public Relations Committee.

Mrs. Joe Dye, Mrs. Manuel Drumm, Mrs. Warren Manning, Mrs. Paul Fisher, Mrs. Clifford LaPlant and Mrs. Bill Lewis of Sikeston attended the meeting.

Other neighborhoods represented included: Dexter, Malden, Caruthersville, Hayti, Kennett, Poplar Bluff, Essex, Charleston and Bloomfield.

NEW YORK (AP) — Loretta Long has been learning while she's been teaching on TV's "Sesame Street" during the past five seasons. Mrs. Long, who plays the role of "Susan" on the popular educational series, was recently awarded her doctorate in urban education from the University of Massachusetts. She taught high school in New York City and Detroit before joining the preschool show.

One must meet his own needs as well as others'

By SHAREN K. HUNT
Area Home Economist

Stop and think about all of the things you are – the roles you live: spouse, homemaker, community member, employe, voter, club member, family member, church member, etc. Each of us has many roles responsibilities and needs, but sometimes it's easy to feel spread out or so divided that the real and total you is camoflauged.

An important part in finding yourself again is to realize that while you have roles to play in meeting others' needs, you too have needs.

Family members especially need to work on meeting their own and group needs. Every family member has basic needs:

The need for affection — to feel liked and loved; the need to belong and contribute to a group; the need for self- direction — to be able to decide things for oneself; the need to grow and achieve — to feel successful; the need for new experiences the need for values to live by and for.

Babies are easy to cuddle and hold, but how about affection needs of others? Taking time for each child, really listening to their stories, showing your love and respect each person for his or her own special self, is just as necessary.

Belonging to a family group means each has privacy as well as a voice in family activites. Young children also feel their contributions are important, whether it's a good story at the dinner table, a trimmed lawn, or a picture to decorated the family room.

Independence as a universal need requires chances to choose in matters that affect you. As a parent, this means you have responsibility to limit frustration and conflict by setting limits on choices children may have.

The need to grow and achieve is met in a family or any kind of group by recognizing that each person has individual strengths and shouldn't be pitted against others.

New experiences is probably the most passed over need in many families. It's so much easier to settle for familiar tried and true ways. Instead, encourage meeting new people, reading new books, trying new things (recipes, crafts, new routes home, hairstyles, etc.)

Values are the big ideas in life and set one's life on a certain path. This means to practice what you preach because children learn from what you do or don't do, as well as what you say.

Any one group or setting shouldn't be expected to satisfy all of one's needs, but families can meet many, if they grow emotionally as well as physically.

A July 6 wedding is planned.

Caring for your new baby: Part 1

Hold a baby comfortably, without fear

You and Your New Baby- Part I

(This series of 18 article prepared by the U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare will inform you of and describe some of the things about normal babies that commonly worry parents--telling you what to do or not to do about them. They should answer many of your questions about what to expect of your new baby, and give simple instructions about solving problems that most parents face during their baby's first year of life. These first three articles are directed at the caring of your baby during his first few weeks of life...both in the hospital and at home. They also suggest ways of making you, the parents, feel more comfortable with him, thereby enabling you to become more aware of his development.

Handle and Play With Baby

New parents are sometimes worried about hurting a newborn baby if they handle him. The first time you see the baby you can feel free to pick him up, get to know what he feels like, dress him and undress him.

Babies are really quite sturdy. They can take a good deal of handling and usually they enjoy it. If there is any reason for special care, the doctor will tell you. If you are unsure about how to pick up, hold, dress or undress your baby, do not hesitate to ask someone— one of the nurses or experienced Mothers— to show you. Then do it yourself until you are comfortable.

There is almost nothing you can do that is wrong except actually drop him. He will let you know by crying or struggling if you are doing something wrong. If you and he are both comfortable, you are doing all right, despite what critical neighbors, grandparents or even nurses or doctors might say.

Get the feel and the fun of handling and playing with your baby while you are still in the hospital. Insist on having him with you more than just for feedings, no matter what the hospital "rules" are. Both you and the baby will learn about each other from these contacts, and it will make it much easier to care for him when you are alone with him at home.

Ask the Doctors and Nurses

Don't keep your questions to yourself! Doctors and nurses may think you know more than you really do or may think you understand something they have tried to explain when you don't. Keep asking questions until you understand. When they use medical or other words you don't understand, ask them to explain. When they give advice that sounds hard to follow, find out whether they really mean what you think they mean.

For example, you might be told to bathe your baby each time you have to change a soiled diaper. You could wind up giving a lot of unnecessary baths if you did not ask and find out that what they mean by "bathe" is to wipe him gently with a clean washcloth or diaper that has been moistened with a little water!

Take Care of Yourself

Your own health as a mother is almost as important to your baby as is his own health. Giving birth to a baby is exhausting, and the changes that take place in a mother's body after she has had a baby are also tiring. Don't be surprised if you don't feel like yourself for several weeks.

You will be tired when you get home from the hospital. You will probably have plenty of strength and energy to take care of yourself and the baby. But housework, the care of other children and meal preparation for the whole family may be more of a strain than you think.

Bell City man bound over for aiding jail escapee

BLOOMFIELD— Frankie Gayle Hubbard of Bell City, charged with aiding and abetting a known felon, has been bound over to Circuit Court after a preliminary hearing in Magistrate Court before Judge Koss Blomeyer.

Hibbard is accused of aiding and abetting Dale McCulley of Bell City after the latter's escape from the Bernie jail where he was being held on charges of burglary and stealing and tampering with a motor vehicle.

Stoddard County Deputy Sheriff Arthur Lee testified that he received a call on Jan. 7 from the Oran Police Department that McCulley had been seen riding in an automobile belonging to Hubbard and that the pair had been seen in various taverns in Scott County.

Lee said he then went to Hubbard's home in Bell City and asked if McCulley was there. He said Hubbard told him McCulley was not there, but Lee said he then stepped into the house and discovered McCulley asleep in the bedroom.

McCulley has since been sentenced to three years in custody of the State Department of Corrections on charges of burglary and stealing.

Charges of tampering with a motor vehicle against Raymond Jackson of Essex were continued to allow him time to obtain counsel. Jackson and a juvenile are charged with the theft of a battery from an automobile owned by Jack Hollis of Dexter while Hollis was hunting south of Dexter on Jan. 27.

Julian A. Stepp of Advance was found not guilty in a trial by the court on a charge of possession of intoxicating beverages by a minor. Deputy Sheriff Lee testified he gave Stepp a ticket after smelling beer and Stepp admitted he had been drinking, but no beer was found in his possession.

Preliminary hearings for Elmer Eugene Blankenship and Paul Brown, charged with felonious stealing, were reset for March 14, due to the absence of the attorney for the defense.

Roy E. Matheney Jr. paid a $50 fine for possession of intoxicating beverages by a minor and a $10 fine for improper registration. A charge of felonious assault was dismissed.

Randy D. Moore was fined $150 on a reduced charge of careless and imprudent driving.

Preliminary hearing was set on March 14 for Raymond Holweg on a charge of disturbing the peace.

Jacob Cecil Vancil of Bloomfield paid a $15 fine for careless and imprudent driving and failure to yield the right of way, resulting in an accident.

The Bible says the harp was invented by Jubal. It was the musical accompaniment for the psalms of the ancient Jews and was played by David.

More puppies need masters

The city pound has more puppies awaiting adoption this week. Anyone who wants to adopt a dog may contact humane officer Bob Beardsley at the Sikeston police department. After 5 p.m. and on weekends, he may be contacted at home.

Additional charges filed in recent Madrid thefts

NEW MADRID — Additional felony charges, stemming from a series of recent thefts, have been filed against three New Madrid Route One youths, George Dawson, Ernest Lee Minehart and James Michael Hall, and two other Route One youths Dean Pipkin and Ricky Ling have been charged with felonious stealing.

Hall, Minehart and Dawson were bound over to Circuit Court Tuesday to stand trial in two felony cases in connection with the tampering of motor vehicles and felonious stealing. Hall and Minehart posted $500 bonds on each of the charges and were released.

Dawson, who is on probation and ineligible to be released on bond, remains in custody of the New Madrid County sheriff's department.

Another felonious stealing charge was filed Wednesday against the three youths, stemming from a theft on Jan. 27 of a 40 horse power outboard motor, gasoline tanks and lawn mower, valued together at $300, which belonged to Carl Parks of New Madrid.

Dawson and Minehart are accused of feloniously tampering with a pickup truck on Jan. 22, which belonged to Bill Taylor of Taylor Towing Co. in New Madrid, by removing two tires and wheels, plus felonious stealing of assorted hand tools, a grinder and a jack valued together at $300.

Preliminary hearings in Magistrate Court were waived by Dawson and Minehart. The latter was released after posting $500 bonds on each charge.

Hall posted $500 bond and is scheduled to reappear in court Monday.

Pipkin and Dawson are charged with theft on Jan. 25 of a five- ton air conditioning unit valued at $600. The unit belonged to Ralph Lewis of New Madrid and reportedly was stolen from a new house under construction.

Each waived preliminary hearing and were bound over to Circuit Court. Pipkin was released when he posted a $500 bond.

Ling was released on a $500 bond posted on a felonious stealing charge. He is scheduled to reappear Monday in Magistrate Court.

He is accused of stealing one 16- foot disc cylinder, two large six- volt batteries, two large 12- volt batteries, another 12- volt battery, a half- inch drill, a 24- inch crescent wrench and one case of motor oil owned by LaValle Farms and valued together at $200.

Most of the stolen itemss have been recovered, according to the New Madrid County sheriff's department.

DAEOC elections to be held Monday

PORTAGEVILLE— Delta Area Economic Opportunity Corporation will hold elections Monday to select members of the board of directors to represent the poor at each of the 12 area opportunity centers operated by DAEOC in the six- county delta area.

Two board members from each of the lower three counties will be selected. Each of the two centers in Pemiscot, Dunklin and New Madrid counties will elect one board member.

The upper three counties of Scott, Stoddard and Mississippi will have one elected board member per county. The two centers in each county will elect their own area representatives.

Another election will be held from 6 to 8:30 p.m. Feb. 11 to select one of the two persons who receive the most votes in Monday's election to serve as the elected board member from that county.

Persons nominated for the elections must be from the low- income group or their elected representative, since the persons elected to the DAEOC board will represent the poor of the six- county area.

2 Dunklin Countians hurt in 3-vehicle crash

SENATH— Two Dunklin County men were injured in a three- vehicle traffic accident one and a half miles west of here Friday.

Ivy Virgil Bearden, 63, of Senath was seriously injured at 11:30 a.m. when his truck was struck head on by a car driven by Darris A. Deran of Arbyrd who received minor injuries. A third driver, Don Bearden, 28, of Senath, whose truck also was struck by the Deran automobile escaped injury.

According to the highway patrol, Deran was driving west on Route P at a high rate of speed when he lost control of his car and collided with the Bearden trucks which are believed to have been parked on the side of the road.

Ivy Bearden was taken to the Dunklin County Memorial Hospital in Kennett, then transferred to Campbell's Clinic in Memphis. Deran also was treated at the Dunklin County hospital.

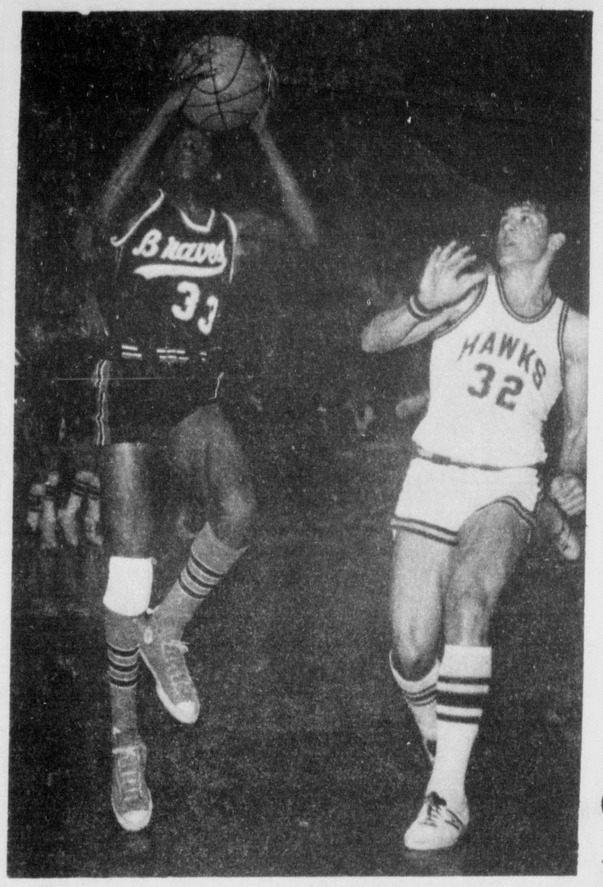
Dogs lose in double overtime



Brave on war path

Scott Central's Otto Porter (33) goes in for easy layup against Kelly's Russ Mothershead (32) in action Friday night as the sophomore was inserted into the Braves lineup for the first time and led the SCHS team in scoring with 17 points and blocked a couple of shots in the game.

DEXTER-- The Sikeston Bulldogs, who have been much maligned by grownups, students and yes, even the press, showed heart Friday night while dropping a 69- 64 decision to coach Jim Hall's Bearcats in two overtimes. Outstanding games were turned in by two Bulldogs in particular, Vangalee West and Mark Eaves, although the entire team came back from a horrendous start to play fine basketball in the second half.

The Bulldogs opened the game jittery, with bad passes and floor mistakes the rule. They committed eleven turnovers in the frame and went until nine seconds remained in the quarter before chalking up their fourth point. While Dexter wasn't shooting much better and Sikeston controlled the boards, the turnovers were enabling the Cats to roll up several easy layups and claim a 13- 4 first quarter lead.

The second quarter started out with more of the same. They expanded that lead to 13 at one time, 21- 8, and looked to be ready to blow SHS off the court. However, the Bulldogs called a time and regrouped their forces. Using their superior spped and the lack of a good ballhandler for Dexter, they hacked away at the lead and got it down to five, 23- 18. Then the fouls, which have killed Sikeston all year, cropped up again and the home team was able to can five charity tosses to end intermission with a ten point lead, 28- 18.

The small Dexter gym was a madhouse most of the second half and throughout the two overtime frames. The Bulldogs used a quickness advantage to swipe the ball several times, but were unable to keep a consistent defensive effort going, as has been the case many times this year. They would close to within three or four, then fall back again as Dexter shooters would slip behind defensive men who were unable to keep up. A 15- 11 third period scoring edge by Sikeston, narrowed Dexter's lead to six, 39- 33.

The Bulldogs completely took over in the last frame. Roy Bowman, who played the game on a lame knee and still ended with 14 points and a dozen rebounds, regained his scoring touch and connected for several long bombs, helping Sikeston take the lead for the first time. They expanded that margin to four points at 48- 44, but continued fouling by Sikeston and reluctance of the referees to call charging fouls on Dexter stymied the Bulldog offense and frustrated the Sikeston players. Sikeston, a team that usually draws 12 to 15 calls per game got just one against the Bearcats and the players obviously over reacted.

With a 51- 49 lead and holding the ball, Sikeston appeared to have the game won with some 20 seconds to go. But, Dexter swiped the ball and Don Reynolds connected from the lane to tie the score as the clock ran out.

The Bulldogs claimed the lead again at 57- 54, but four more free throws by Dexter tied the count at 58- all after the first overtime. Dexter connected on 12 of 16 free throws during the two periods, compared to four of six for Sikeston.

In the second overtime the fouls began to tell. Ronald Marks had fouled out in the first overtime and Mark Eaves and Vangalee West quickly followed him to the bench. Despite the absence of the three starters the team repeatedly fought back, staying with the tough Bearcats all the way. Finally the rebounding of Reynolds controlled the late game tempo and helped Dexter to pull away for the win.

Reynolds and Mark Clippard, who hit 10 of 13 free throws, both scored 20 points to lead Dexter. Vangalee West had his best night of the year, hitting from 20 feet out often enough to end the contest with 18 points. Bowman followed with 14 points, Marks scored 11 and the sophomore center, Mark Eaves, hit all five of his floor shots to ten points. Eaves, starting his second varsity tilt, also collared a dozen rebounds to tie Bowman to the team lead.

Sikeston outrebounded Dexter 44- 27 and shot a higher percentage, 47.5 to 36.7, but Dexter hit 25 of 36 free throws, compared to eight of 13 for SHS. The deciding factor in the game, however, and the reason Sikeston fell behind early was turnovers. The Bulldogs committed 30 to just 17 for Dexter.

Sikeston's B- team kept their conference record intact at 4- 0 with a first game 55- 48 win over the Dexter jayvees. The scoring for the junior Bulldogs was led by 6- foot- 2 inch sophomore Ed Nunnelee with 16 points, his top effort of the year. Ron Priday scored 13 and Hal Presley added 11. Mark Guethle scored 16 for Dexter

Sikeston's Ron Marks (10) attempts to pass to an unshown teammate during Friday night's game at Dexter. His efforts are opposed by Bearcat guard Mark Clippard.

Hawks claw Braves

BENTON-- The Scott Central Braves revamped their team with the promotion of Otto Porter to the varsity team and the Braves played with the Kelly Hawks for three quarters before getting blown off the court in the fourth period and losing the Scott-Mississippi league game 75-53 to the Daily Standard's top rated team.

Porter looked like a seasoned veteran as the 5- 11 jumping jack popped in 17 points to lead the Braves on offense.

Kelly had trouble finding the hole in the bucket in the first period but Scott Central had their problems as well and the Hawks outscored the Braves 18- 10. The scoring picked up somewhat in the second period as the Hawks' defense had trouble getting back on the fast break and the Braves fired in 23 points while Kelly again had offensive troubled and scored only 21 but led 39- 33 at the half.

Neither team could do much right in the third quarter and the scoring fell off quite a bit but Kelly hit their stride in the last period and dropped in 25 points to the Braves nine.

Mike Brasher hit the basket for 24 points on the night to lead all players on offense.

Scott Central edged the Hawks in the B game 64- 62 in a very close played ball game. McElmurry was high for the Hawks with 18 points and Winfield hit 24 for the Braves.

Pitts leads Tigers

CARUTHERSVILLE — Richard Pitts scored 19 points and pulled down 18 rebounds to lead the CHS Tigers to a come- from-behind 57-56 decision over the Twin Rivers Royals Friday night.

Twin Rivers claimed a 19-16 lead in the first quarter, but failed to maintain that pace against the home town team and fell behind 35-32 at half and never regained its composure of the first period.

Coach Hugh James' Bengals had to claim the win at the charity stripe, claiming a 5-2 edge in that department, while the Royals held a 27-26 edge from the field.

Blaylock honored

KANSAS CITY-- Gary Blaylock of Malden, Mo., has been named the Kansas City Royals Eastern Scouting Director, according to a release from the Royals front office.

Blaylock, who joined the Royals as a scout in 1968, has doubled as a scout and manager the last three seasons. He has led Billings, Mont., to Pioneer Leage Championships each of the last two summers, and was selected Manager- of- the-Year both times. He guided the Mustangs to a runnerup finish in 1971.

Blaylock pitched 14 seasons professionally, including stints with the St. Louis Cardinals and New York Yankees in 1959, then managed for five years before joining the Royals.

The Southeast Missouri native signed Mark Little of Gideon, one of the Royals most promising youngsters in their minor league camp, and has a son, Gary Jr., in the Yankees organization.

Smelser hits 34

BERNIE--- Andy Smelser had his biggest night of the season as the flashy junior popped in 34 points as the Risco Tigers edged the Bernie Mules 58- 53 here Friday night.

The difference in the game was at the free throw line as Risco hit eight and Bernie only three after both teams hit 25 shots from the field.

High scoring Ruben White ran into early foul trouble and eventually fouled out in the fourth period and ended the game with only 12 points on the night and Joe Stuever had to take up the offensive balance with 21 points.

Risco took a one point lead, 12- 11 after the first period and held on for the win. Bernie never threatened in the game until midway in the fourth period as the Mules outscored the Tigers 12- 11.

Risco won the B game 49-40 with Kevin scoring 11 and Charles Johnson hit 14.

Today in U.S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Saturday, Feb. 2, the 33rd day of 1974. There are 332 days left in the year. This is Groundhog Day.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1848, Mexico ceded a vast area to the United States for $15 million. Included was what is now Texas, New Mexico, Arizona and California.

On this date:

In 1535, the Argentine city of Buenos Aires was founded.

In 1635, New Amsterdam was incorporated by the Dutch.

In 1808, French forces occupied Rome after Pope Pius VII refused to recognize the Kingdom of Naples and join an alliance against Britain.

In 1870, doctors revealed that the so-called Cardiff Giant, discovered on a farm near Cardiff, N.Y., was not a petrified human being but a hoax.

Deaths

ROBERT H. LAPLANT

NEW MADRID — Services for Robert Henry LaPlant, 52, a cabinet maker who died sometime after 8 p.m. Thursday in a fire which destroyed his mobile home nine miles east of New Madrid in the Barnes Ridge Community, are scheduled for 2 p.m. Sunday in Richards Funeral Home. The Rev. Earl G. Statler, pastor of First United Methodist Church, will officiate.

Burial will follow in Evergreen Cemetery.

A life- long resident of New Madrid, he was born Oct. 3, 1921 to Mrs. Hazel Fitzgerald of 412 Powell St., Sikeston, and the late Welton LaPlant.

He was a 1940 graduate of New Madrid High School.

Other survivors include one son, Robert Welton LaPlant of Milan, Mich.; two sisters, Mrs. Helen Monan of Sikeston and Mrs. Vera Sargent of Davison, Mich., and one grandson.

Hospital director resigns

DEXTER— Dexter Memorial Hospital announced Friday that Jack Norman has resigned as administrator to take a position as administrator of Lucerne Hospital in Orlando, Fla., and will leave Dexter on March 2 to assume his new responsibilities.

Norman has been administrator of Dexter Memorial Hospital since November 1970 following previous employment as materials manager of the University of Missouri Medical Center at Columbia.

In announcing his new position, Norman stated that he based his decision on the opportunity for advancement in the medical administration field and the opportunity to spend more time with his family in a growing recreational area.

The board of directors, with assistance from Norman, will appoint a personnel committee to secure a new administrator for the Dexter facility.

Cabinet Rejectee

Roger Brooke Taney of Maryland was the first Cabinet appointee rejected by the U.S. Senate. Taney was proposed by President Jackson for secretary of the treasury in 1834.

trying to ride a donkey and shoot a basketball at the same time, but while in the hospital, I also underwent a two-hour "brain scan."

I still believe fate is trying to tell me that I should be in show business, because on the side of the huge brain - scanning machine was printed "Dot Recording."

Now I can truthfully tell my friends that I underwent my own two - hour "Dot recording session." You'll have to admit Dot's not a bad label for your first recording.

If it's ever released, the emphasis will more than likely be on the "flip" side.

A week in the hospital is an education within itself, and I hope to continue this series to report on some of the interesting people I met while there.

But, let me leave you with a moral to my story. It was given to me by a mortician friend of mine, Tom Doherty of Kennett, who incidentally is also Dunklin County coroner.

He sent me word that "it pays to stay off your boss's ass."

Couple faces gun charges

William Travis James and his wife, Lula Bell James, were arrested at 5:35 p.m. Friday and have been charged with displaying a dangerous and deadly weapon in a threatening manner, according to police.

Police said James, who is a student in the adult basic education trining program at Sikeston High School, was informed by his instructor, Woody Winchester that a lady was at the school waiting to see him.

After James left to see his visitor, Winchester noticed that the door had been left open, and when he went over to shut it, he saw Mrs. James pointing a gun at her husband and called the police.

James took the gun away from his wife and threw it on the ground. Mrs. James picked up the gun and was holding it when police arrived.

Police said the gun was not loaded.

Mr. and Mrs. James were released after posting bonds of $110 each. Arraignment is scheduled Thursday in City Court.

The peace symbol, an inverted "Y" in a circle, originally represented the semaphore code for ND (nuclear disarmament).

Ralph Uthlaut, R-New Florence, that would have provided power to subpoena records of suppliers who bring fuel into the state, along with a penalty clause, was defeated.

Also defeated was the committee substitute bill. When it came to a vote on the housepassed fuel monitoring bill, Sen. William Cason, D-Clinton, referred the bill to the budget control committee.

Later, the Senate soundly defeated the bill, reconsidered the vote and defeated it again.

The House gave one-sided support to a bill allowing right turns on red lights and sent it to the governor.

The measure would not interfere with local option by cities who could forbid right turns on red lights. The bill also allows the State Highway Commission to prohibit such turns on state roads.

What's the Difference?

Black and green teas differ only in the curing process, green tea being what teamakers call unfermented tea and black tea is fermented.

8-party lines to be eliminated

Improved telephone service will be available in the near future to many Sikeston customers with the elimination of eight- party lines, according to Mike Smith, manager of Southwestern Bell Telephone Company's Sikeston office.

"Added facilities here make it possible to offer customers throughout the Sikeston exchange lines that will have no more than four parties per line," Smith said. "I'm sure this is good news for our eight- party customers."

He also observed that the improvement will benefit all Sikeston customers since persons calling former eight-party numbers are less likely to encounter busy signals.

Smith stated that, in most cases, the added cost of better service will be nominal compared with the improvement and added privacy the change in service offers.

Basic monthly charge for four- party service in Sikeston is $4.65, plus tax and mileage, if applicable, Smith said.

The manager stated that each customer in Sikeston that currently has an eight-party line will be contacted personally by a Southwestern Bell representative to discuss the change in detail.

"We hope our Sikeston customers will be pleased with this service improvement," Smith said.

Making it Legal

Although it is customary for a woman to assume her husband's name, she is under no legal obligation to assume her husband's name when she marries.
